Josh's incredible physical challenge shows strength of the human spirit

A COWBRIDGE man has just completed an amazing physical challenge – aimed at showing that the medical condition Cystic Fibrosis (CF) can be kept at bay through exercise and determination.

GEM readers may recall that we reported earlier this month that Josh Llewellyn-Jones would be at the Vale Resort on July 28/29 to attempt an astonishing 24-hour challenge.

In that 24 hours, he intended to do the following:

- Lift 100 tonnes.
- Cycle 100 miles.
- Run 10 miles.
- Row 10 miles.
- Cross-Train 10 miles
- Swim 2 miles.
- Do 3,000 sit-ups.
- Do 1,000 push-ups.
- Do 1,000 squats.

Well, The GEM can report that Josh didn't do the above – he did better!

REPORT by PHILIP IRWIN

Josh with Dr Bob Kramer, the man who had a profound effect on Josh's life.

Josh said: "I hit all the targets after 22 hours, so for the remaining two hours, I went back on the rowing machine, and did another 10 miles."

Not surprisingly, it was the cue for a great celebration among family and friends – but for Josh there was an extra thrill waiting.

The American doctor who, 28 years ago, had preached the importance of exercise to Josh's parents, Dr Bob Kramer, came along to see him tackle the challenge!

Josh told his followers on Facebook: "This man has treated thousands of patients all over the world.

"He's been at the top of his field, and after spending the weekend with him, I'm reminded of his unbelievable character, kind heart, and incredible outlook on life.

"This is Dr Bob Kramer who at two, told my parents to 'throw the little bastard in the salt water and make him swim, and then run his legs off'.

"For that, I thank you, but most of all, I thank you for flying all the way from Dallas, Texas, to be here for the challenge and most of all, our birthdays!"

COWBRIDGE REMEMBERS PASSCHENDAELE FALLEN

AT 11am on Monday (July 31), the town of Cowbridge observed a minute's silence to remember the fallen in the devastating World War 1 Battle of Passchendaele.

The short ceremony at the war memorial outside the town hall, was organised by the Cowbridge branch of the Royal British Legion, and was attended by members of the public and town councillors.

Peter Davies of the Legion spoke at the ceremony, and the Cowbridge RBL branch president, Coun Hunter Jarvie, laid a wreath.

Barry DOES have a cinema!

WHEN I first came to live in Barry, folks were bemoaning the closure of the Theatre Royal cinema.

Well, all is not lost – readers will be happy to hear Barry now has a cinema in the Memorial Hall, showing the latest blockbusters.

During my recent visits, I have been greeted by friendly staff, great quality cinema and sound, not to mention free parking.

So come on, folks – give it a go!

Malcolm Wilson,
Barry.

Troublesome neighbours

WE also are bothered by seagulls.

Apart from driving away the smaller birds, such as finches, sparrows and blue tits from our garden and the surrounding area, their incessant squawking day and night is deafening.

They soil windows, cars, washing and, of course, people...

Recently, an elderly neighbour was dive-bombed by a gull when she inadvertently walked close to one of its chicks in her back garden.

Another lady surprised a gull in her kitchen, stealing from her dog's bowl.

Bin days are a nightmare. Black bags are ripped apart. Rubbish is strewn everywhere.

Last week, I witnessed a gull family feud on a nearby rooftop, with seven adults and one chick squabbling and fighting.

The gull population has increased dramatically in recent years as they seek new homes.

The numbers in this neighbourhood are forcing people who have lived here happily for many years to consider moving elsewhere.

Cycle paths would be used – if kept clear!

I REFER to LG Tippins' letter in The GEM regarding the 'Lycra fraternity' and their inability to use cycle paths, and whether the Vale Council should pass a by-law making it mandatory to use them.

I am one of this common fraternity to which he refers and would be more than happy to use these facilities – if they were kept free from debris, glass and bumps.

Travelling in excess of 20 mph with limited protection means cyclists look for the safest route – this is sometimes the road.

I would encourage LG Tippins to purchase a brush and start a programme of keeping the cycle paths clear of debris (often thrown there by car drivers).

Once clean, I will be more than happy to use them.

Alan Peasey,
Barry.

Referendum an 'advisory vote'
'84 per cent of us did NOT vote for Brexit'

THE insidious claim that 84 per cent of people voted for Brexit in the general election, calculated by lumping together everyone who voted Conservative, Labour and Ukip, is totally untenable and I object to being counted in this ridiculous percentage simply because I voted Labour.

I did not vote for Brexit.

Both Conservative and Labour parties include a wide range of views on Brexit. After all, David Cameron was so convinced his Tory party would vote Remain, he threw out the challenge of the referendum to chastise his Leavers. They couldn't all have changed their minds on such a slender majority based so much on misleading claims.

Neither did many of the Labour leaders and MPs – who no doubt voted Labour – vote Brexit. Some have made this clear in voice and voting in Parliament. Among them is Ann Clwyd MP for the Cynon Valley, one of the people now calling for the Labour Party to campaign positively in opposition to Brexit.

As the Brexit process moves forward and the damage it threatens becomes more evident, she points out it is 'perfectly legitimate' to oppose any course of action that would be 'bad for Britain' and that 'damages our economy and destroys jobs'.

She draws attention to acute concerns coming from manufacturing, farming, universities, aviation, hospitals, energy and elsewhere, and urges that we should 'distance ourselves from such a disaster now'. In a democracy, she says, it is always possible for people 'to think again and choose another direction'.

She points out the referendum was 'an advisory vote won by a very narrow majority on the basis of what turned out to be a pack of lies'. Against that, she says, people are increasingly aware of falling living standards, rising inflation, slowing growth, and lower productivity.

No, 84 per cent of us did not vote for Brexit – especially for the chaotic Tory Brexit that seems aimed at making the UK a low tax haven for big business.

Jean Silvan Evans,
Peterson-super-Ely.

Vale gardens are award winners!

Congratulations to our neighbour, Old Hall Gardens in Cowbridge, who have been awarded a second 'Green Flag' – and well done to the other Vale gardens and community spaces who have been recognised for their endeavours.

I would like to point out that Cowbridge Physic Garden has also been awarded a Green Flag – for the ninth successive year!

This continuing accolade is a testament to the dedication and hard work of a team of volunteers (you'll see them in the garden on Thursdays).

Thanks to their knowledge, gardening skills and green fingers, we have this wonderful historic gem of beauty and tranquillity for all to freely enjoy.

Three cheers – or in the Physic Garden's case, nine cheers – all round!

Martyn Hurst,
Trustee of Cowbridge Physic Garden Trust.

'Traders should help with firework costs'

I READ with interest that Barry's annual fireworks display may be coming to an end, due to costs and council cutbacks.

The coffee shop owners should put their hands into their deep pockets and help out, because these are the people who benefit most from the display evenings. No doubt we will hear 'Oh, we've had a bad year'.

The seafront shops are overflowing seven days a week, 52 weeks a year from tourism, park runs, dog walkers and many other activities,

So I say to these shop owners and traders on the Island – put your hand in your pockets and help out!

Ashley Wallace,
Barry.

Not exclusive to the Welsh!

ALADÁR GEREVICH needs to understand that the English language is often used loosely (GEM letter, July 27, headed 'Not everyone in Wales is Welsh').

'Welsh' is often used to mean 'of Wales'. 'Welsh people' can mean 'all people living in Wales' – though Welsh citizens would be better terminology.

A 'Welsh' charity means a charity 'operating in Wales', not exclusively for the Welsh.

When Mr Gerevich lived in England, he would have come across organisations that described themselves as in some way 'English', e.g. English Heritage.

Did he think that he, as a Hungarian, was excluded from their activities?

Did he write to the press and claim that such organisations were racist? I suspect not.

Does he think that a company calling itself 'Welsh Water' would only supply water to people identifying themselves as Welsh?

His comparison with European wars and ethnic hatred in the Balkans is absurd.

Would Mr Gerevich's friends please set him straight?

Niclas Ap Glyn,
Penarth

Choir tribute makes Barrians proud...

I FEEL it necessary to query the reason why the Barry Male Voice Choir's exploits in Belgium last week were relegated to page 7 of The GEM.

Whereas the story of the six-year-old whose pet rabbit was killed with a brick was truly horrific, I feel on this occasion, the performance of the choir merited front page news.

I was not fortunate enough to be at the Menin Gate, but it seems I missed an inspiring and emotional performance by the Barry Male Voice Choir.

The members of the choir, I am sure, will not seek publicity for their endeavour.

I believe they will treat it as an honour to be able to travel to Belgium and pay tribute to the fallen heroes of World War One.

I thank Melvin Chambers for bringing this to our attention and I wish to heap praise on all the members of the choir who raise a great deal of money for numerous charities throughout the year.

Well done, lads!

Mr S Howard,
Barry.

FOOTNOTE: There was certainly no intention to "relegate" the efforts of the Barry choir, which regularly features in The GEM, and, as the headline stated, 'Did Wales proud' in Belgium.

Where is democracy?

POLITICIANS of all parties promise to serve their communities and to deliver best results on behalf of their electorate.

They are quick to take credit for things that go well – and just as quick to push the blame somewhere else, if their actions prove unpopular.

The previous Vale Council allowed the building of the incinerator just a few metres from our town.

This project will undo all the years of good work and regeneration that we have seen – and I'm sure the very same politicians would claim credit for all the good work.

Aviva and Biomass No.2, who bullied the Vale Council and would not take no for an answer, are acting like a corporate dictator by imposing their will on the people of Barry.

Will the NRW, who are not elected, also be pushed into making a decision to grant a licence for operation of the 'gasification' plant?

Heat is applied to waste, toxic gases are produced, the by-product is ash – that sounds like incineration to me, whatever it may be called.

Elected representatives took our votes, but either cannot or will not stop this corporation risking our children's future health and wellbeing.

Where is democracy? What is the point of voting? Why not just hand over the world to the faceless corporations to exploit us – and the earth – and will walk away at the first sign of trouble?

Mark Taylor,
Barry.

HIGH TIDE TIMES
(UNTIL AUGUST 10)

The high tides listed in this week's GEM are those in Porthcawl. It should be remembered that along the coast, high tide times will vary. For instance, in Barry, the high point will be 20 – 25 minutes later.

DATE	Time AM	Ht M	Time PM	Ht M
03 Thur	03.53	7.7	16.31	7.8
04 Fri	04.57	7.9	17.27	8.2
05 Sat	05.51	8.3	18.12	8.7
06 Sun	06.31	8.6	18.53	9.1
07 Mon	07.09	9.0	19.28	9.4
08 Tues	07.47	9.5	20.04	9.6
09 Wed	08.22	9.5	20.41	9.7
10 Thur	08.58	9.5	21.16	9.8

While The GEM makes every effort to check the accuracy of tide tables, we recommend that anyone putting out to sea, or walking in an area where they could be cut off, should check with a tide table specific to their location.

Crossing the river at Symonds Yat.

U3A walkers have a mixed day on latest adventure

ON July 11, a minibus load of 16 Cowbridge U3A Wednesday Walkers and friends left for a day out in the beautiful Wye Valley village of Symonds Yat.

Those who know the area will be aware that it is difficult even to get a minibus into Symonds Yat East, and larger vehicles are prohibited.

Our first port of call was a coffee stop at the historic 'Saracen's Head', where a marker shows how the bar was flooded by the river to a depth of a few feet in 2002.

The pub runs the hand-pulled ferry which took us across the Wye for the start of the walk, with a maximum of 12 per crossing.

The walk was an easy affair of nearly three miles, remaining alongside the river, heading downstream to Biblins Bridge, a pedestrian bridge, which swings slightly unnervingly as you cross it, and only six people are allowed on it at any one time.

We then turned back upstream to walk along what was once the railway line into Symonds Yat, stopping for lunch at the Royal Lodge Hotel, just opposite where the station would have been.

We enjoyed a good lunch there, before heading out into the now incessant rain, to pick up our Kingfisher Cruise boat, in which we glided peacefully along the Wye among the ducks and the swan family with cygnets, for about 40 minutes.

After that, it was a trip in the minibus to Yat Rock – at least for most of us, but two members of the group chose to go up the hard way, by an extremely steep footpath.

I had warned the minibus driver that the road route would be narrow and steep; "No problem", he had said, possibly having to regret his words when he found out just how steep and narrow it is! But we all got there safely, walkers and minibus passengers alike.

I think everyone could see what fabulous views are to be had from the Rock, although they were by this time blighted a little by the rain.

The peregrine falcons which nest nearby, thought better of venturing out on such a damp day.

On the very wet journey home, the minibus developed a problem with a windscreen wiper, which the driver eventually had to deliberately break off. And we met horrendous traffic jams on the M4.

I fear that some participants may only remember rain, a wonky windscreen wiper, and a tedious journey on the motorway, when they recall the day.

I hope, however, that some may also recollect the fabulous picturesque location, the unusual ferry crossing, the lovely walk, the swinging bridge, the river cruise, the stunning views from Yat Rock, the leisurely lunch and most of all the great company.

LLANGAN GARDEN CLUB DIGS FOR VICTORY IN SCHOOL TOURNAMENT

Members of Llangan Garden Club line up to receive their certificate from Chris Flynn and Mary Wallis.

A NEW venture took place this year at Cowbridge Rotary Club, when they held a gardening competition for local primary schools.

The 'Schools' Garden Competition' reached its climax recently with the judging and awards ceremony held at Llangan and Y Bont Faen Primary Schools.

A spokesperson said: "Very well done to the garden club at Llangan, who were the winners in the competition judged by experts Chris Flynn, Head Gardener at Dyffryn Gardens and Mary Wallis from the Cowbridge Physic Garden.

"The competition was very close, with Y Bont Faen Garden Club being awarded a well-merited certificate of achievement.

"The judges were particularly impressed with the commitment of staff, parents and garden club members at both schools, and agreed that both gardens were a credit to their schools."

Cowbridge Rotary plans to run the competition again next year.

Nostalgia in store from household names with a Welsh connection..!

IT was an afternoon of nostalgia for members of the Cowbridge Fellowship Club at their July meeting, when we welcomed Gwerfyl Gardner, who gave a talk with slides on departmental stores – the majority of which had a Welsh connection.

Gwerfyl began her talk with James Howell from Pembrokeshire, who started as a small draper in London, and came back to Wales to open up his departmental store in St Mary Street Cardiff.

James Howell had a great influence on Cardiff – in fact, he built the Park Hotel (now known as Jury's) and rumour has it he would only entertain sales buyers who had stayed in the hotel.

He lived in the Mansion House with his large family. Eventually, the store was taken over by The House of Fraser.

Another large departmental store in St Mary Street was a family-run store by David Morgan, who came from Brecon.

Gwerfyl then talked about other stores in Wales, including Dan Evans from Swansea, and, of course, the talk wouldn't be complete withoutt Harrods of London.

Everyone enjoyed the talk, remembering personal experiences at some of the stores. Members then enjoyed their afternoon tea with homemade sandwiches and cakes.

If you, or anyone you know would be interested in joining Cowbridge Fellowship Club, call 01656 668446 where you can find out more information.

Better still, why not come along to one of our meetings held on the last Thursday of each month at the Village Hall in Llanblethian?

PS

Tenants say 'thank you' to Rotarians

ON behalf of the tenants at Longmeadow Court, Sheltered Housing Association, I would like to say a big thank you to Peter Davies and the Cowbridge Rotary Club members, for all their hard work on Saturday morning at the complex, getting our front garden into shape.

It has made a big difference to us, and we are all very grateful for what they have done.

Weather conditions were not kind on Saturday, as there were heavy showers, but that certainly didn't stop them from carrying on and getting the work done.

The complex is looking a whole lot better!

Also, a big thank you for all the time and support they give to us throughout the year.

Nick Battersby, Sheltered Housing Warden.

Gardening club visit

THE Cowbridge Gardening Club July visit this year was to two contrasting gardens in the town.

Thanks go to everyone for their support and donations to the Air Ambulance, which came to £125.

The next meeting will be on Thursday, September 28, when the speaker will be Kevin Thomas, whose subject is 'bulbs, corms and tubers'.

LITTLE STRINGS MAKE A BIG SOUND IN FIRST CONCERT AT HOLY CROSS!

LAST Saturday, Holy Cross Church saw the first end-of-year concert of the newly formed Little Strings Orchestra, which was created in September 2016 for all children learning string instruments in the Cowbridge area.

Extremely enjoyable performances were given by the orchestra and individual students of the Little Strings Violin School. Students vary in age from five to 17 and they gave performances on violin, piano, voice and recorder in various combinations.

Leonie Hain, director, also encourages young composers in the area to submit their compositions for consideration for performance, and on this occasion a string quartet was formed out of the orchestra to perform Michael Hain's string quartet Opus 1; and the string orchestra performed Max Hall's piece based on a theme by Brahms.

Solo playing with the orchestra is highly encouraged and on this occasion they were joined by Seren Horsey on recorder.

Leonie Hain also showed the results of the new Colourstrings students, who are the youngest group of players, aged from five to seven, and they performed on their violins various solos, duets and group playing, as well as all-important group singing.

To end the concert, the audience participated in a rumba, playing along with the orchestra various percussion instruments, such as tambourines, claves and shakers. A joyous and enjoyable time was had by all, a correspondent reported.

The orchestra will be starting rehearsals once more in September at United Free Church hall on Saturday mornings at 10am; everyone is welcome to the open day on September 9.

Call 01446 775048 for further information, or visit www.littlestrings.uk.

TREOES, LLANGAN & ST MARY HILL

Your local correspondent is Nancy Davidge, "Tynewydd", Llangan. (01656) 860303

Nina West pictured in 1940.

Remembering Dunkirk...

AFTER reading the review of the film Dunkirk, by fellow GEM columnist Gareth Jamieson, I decided to visit Treoes resident, Mrs Nina West.

This is her story, as relayed to me by Nina's daughter, Lorraine:

At the time of Dunkirk, from May 24 to June 4, 1940, aged 19 years, Nina was a trainee senior theatre nurse at the Royal Sea Bathing Hospital in Margate.

Her window faced the sea and they watched the little ships returning with injured soldiers from Dunkirk.

They did not know what to expect as they made their preparations to receive young men blinded, severely burned, with fractures, missing or gangrenous limbs, and infected wounds. All were starving, dehydrated, physically and mentally exhausted.

They were the nearest point to France and the desperately-wounded came to them first; they worked day and night.

In September, the hospital suffered a direct hit. Too dangerous to remain, Nina returned to Wales and continued her nursing career.

Sadly, Nina is no longer able to remember those days and is cared for at her Treoes home by her daughter, Lorraine.

Birthday greetings

BIRTHDAY greetings go to Mrs Jean Thomas, who celebrated her 81st birthday this week.

Everyone at the Young At Heart Club is wishing her good health, which will enable her to join her friends at the club.

Josh rises to CF challenge

Cystic Fibrosis means the lungs and digestive system are at a daily risk of becoming clogged.

The life expectancy is put at 37 years of age.

Josh explained: "When I was born, my parents did a great deal of research and went to America to see a specialist."

That specialist was Dr Bob Kramer, and Josh has followed his advice ever since.

Josh said that this evolved into a personal motto: "I train to stay alive."

The GEM asked if there had been any crisis points during the 24-hour exercise challenge.

Josh said: "There were a couple of mental barriers I had to get through, but I had so much support from family and friends that it wasn't too bad.

"The interest around the world was amazing. At one point, we were trending on Twitter and I was the second most popular story.

"We were also the most popular justgiving page."

There were practical aspects to Josh's challenge. How do you eat the right food that will keep your energy levels topped up, but not lead to stomach cramps, or muscle cramps?

Josh said: "I was worried about muscle cramps – that could have made the challenge even more difficult. However, I didn't get any.

"During the first part of the 24 hours, my trainer Nathan was basically force-feeding me.

"I had flapjacks, bananas, wraps with honey, and lots of isotonic drinks. I drank two to three litres of fluid per hour while I was exercising.

"Then, for the final eight hours or so, I ate mainly sweets with a high sugar content, to give me the energy to keep going.

"All in all, I took in about 12,000 calories over the 24 hours."

So, how did it feel when it was over? I meant physically, in terms of tiredness and muscle aches, but Josh had a different take on it.

He said: "It was so overwhelming at the end to have hit the target.

"Deep down, I had had some doubts, but the time after finishing was so exhilarating."

In physical terms, after the challenge was over, Josh went for a swim to relax his muscles, and he had a 45-minute "brutal" massage to ward off muscle stiffness.

Josh arranged this challenge to coincide with his 30th birthday, and he is planning a short rest, but will be back in the gym soon.

He feels that he has shown young people with a diagnosis of CF that there is a great deal that you can do.

There are plenty of young followers – Josh calls them his CF warriors – who get daily inspiration from him.

It all means that he is already thinking about a challenge for next year, close to his 31st birthday.

There are a number of world events designed to find the fittest man on the planet, and Josh is considering one of them.

In the meantime, Josh will be working in the gym, and outside the gym, trying to make a difference for people with CF.

'No case made for the Northern Access Road' – SAYS WELSH TORY LEADER

THE Welsh Government has failed to make a business case for the proposed Northern Access Road to the Enterprise Zone in St Athan, claims South Wales Central regional AM, Andrew RT Davies.

Calling on Ministers to scrap the plans, the Welsh Tory leader referred to several questions he had asked in the Assembly over the past few weeks, saying they had failed to counter suggestions that upgrading the existing road infrastructure would be sufficient.

The road is set to cost £15 million, but Mr Davies has called for that money to be put towards other infrastructure projects in the Vale.

Over 100 people attended a public meeting in Llanmaes last week and in a show of hands, all present voted against the road.

Unlike the proposed road, the Dinas Powys by-pass has widespread local support, with many people believing it will solve congestion problems between Cardiff and Barry in the eastern Vale. Mr Davies said he has written to cabinet secretary for economy and infrastructure, Ken Skates AM, asking him to scrap plans for the Northern Access Road – and instead put the money towards delivering the by-pass.

Andrew RT Davies AM, at the site of the Aerospace Business Park in St Athan.

He went on: "I have raised concerns about the lack of a business case for the Northern Access Road on several occasions and, sadly, Welsh Government Ministers have failed to make it. There is widespread local opposition, with many people feeling the road is unnecessary.

"With no evidence to the contrary, the logical step is for us to upgrade the existing road infrastructure and that way we can all get on with making the St Athan Enterprise Zone the success we want it to be.

"I have, therefore, called on the Cabinet Secretary to scrap plans for the Northern Access Road and put the money towards the Dinas Powys by-pass instead.

"We have a situation where residents in one part of the Vale are vehemently opposed to a new road, while in another part, residents are campaigning hard in support of one.

"It seems illogical not to put the money towards a project people want, as opposed to one that has been the source of many local concerns."

CARDIFF CROWN COURT REPORT by AJ SICLUNA

AFTER a six-hour drinking session, during which he also took cocaine, an oil rig worker carried out a sustained, horrific attack on a neighbour who was also a friend, Cardiff Crown Court has heard.

The victim, lorry driver Tony Mills, was off work for 15 weeks, and has had to change his occupation after suffering a punctured lung, two thigh injuries, a cut left arm, a further cut and a suspected fractured jaw, said prosecutor Stephen Donoghue.

"There was blood all over the place" he said.

Wesley Smith, 35, of Wenvoe Terrace, Barry, was jailed for 20 months after he admitted the charge of inflicting grievous bodily harm.

Judge Eleri Rees told him: "I take the view that this was so serious only an immediate custodial term is appropriate.

"It was a sustained, terrifying assault. There was the use of a broken broom handle, and he was bitten. He has had to change his job and there was a great deal of pain and suffering."

Mr Donoghue said: "On December 10, Smith invited Mr Mills to his home for a drinking session which lasted six hours, but things took a turn for the worse when Smith blamed Mr Mills for causing him to fall over.

"There was shouting and screaming as he punched and kicked Mr Mills. The attack continued and somehow a nearby broom handle was snapped in half, and Smith attacked him with the sharpened end.

"He even bit his arm and the top of his head and he pulled Mr Mills' trousers down, preventing him running away," said Mr Donoghue.

Mr Mills pleaded: "Please fetch me an ambulance," but Smith called a taxi, put Mr Mills into it, told the driver to take him to hospital and paid him £50.

When arrested, Smith denied the offence and claimed Mr Mills attacked him.

Smith's counsel, Andrew Taylor, said: "He has a sought-after job as a technician on oil rigs, taking home £3,400 a month. This offence puts his career in jeopardy."

He said the defendant, who had been taking cocaine, himself needed hospital treatment.

"He has made great progress getting away from cocaine and has paid £45 an hour for counselling.

"This was a very unusual incident. It was behaviour totally out of character and will not be repeated. He appreciates his predicament and feels dreadful. He is a caring man and has done his bit as a step-dad and a friend."

• In a victim impact statement, Mr Mills said he was hospitalised for several days and was in constant pain for many weeks and suffered dizzy spells.

"The incident has knocked my self-confidence – I was terrified by the assault."

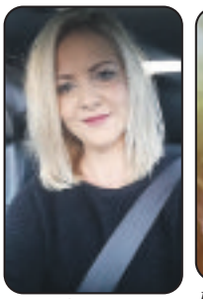
YORKSHIRE ACCENT BUT 'A WELSH GIRL AT HEART'...

Rhiannon in search for her long lost dad

Rhiannon, with husband Nick and sons Charlie and Elliot.



Rhiannon Pattison

Rhiannon as a little girl in Barry.

by TIM CHAPMAN
07891 690798 or email tim.chapman@glamorgan-gem.co.uk

A WOMAN from Rotherham is desperate to contact her long-lost father, whom she last saw in Barry 30 years ago.

He was a keen local darts player who once played a charity match against world champion Eric Bristow.

Rhiannon Pattison (38) talks with a broad Yorkshire accent, but describes herself as 'a Welsh girl at heart', and one who hopes to find the vital clue that could lead to the whereabouts of her dad.

She said: "I'm hoping The GEM's readers can help in my search. My father's name is David Gwynfor Jones and his nickname was Buck. He was born in June 1952 and his birth was registered in Ruthin, Denbighshire.

"He played for two darts teams in Barry, The King William (Billy) Pub and The Six Bells in the year 1978-79.

"He played a charity match against Eric Bristow, but I'm unsure of the year."

Rhiannon was born Rhiannon McCarthy on September 9, 1979.

"My mother was Patricia McCarthy and I had two half-sisters, Rachel and Sarah. We lived at Four Acres Close in Barry until I was eight."

Following a family break-up, Rhiannon moved to Rotherham where she still lives.

She is happily married to Nick and has two sons Charlie (10) and Elliot (7).

Tragically, she has lost two daughters to a blood poisoning disease that did not affect her sons. If Isabelle had lived she would have been 12 years old this August, and Grace would be one.

As Rhiannon has seen her children growing up and endured her own tragedies, it has intensified her hopes of tracking down David.

"The last I heard, in the 1980s, was that he had moved back to north Wales, and had a flat in Colwyn Bay."

David would be 65 years old now.

Rhiannon has looked for her father for a number of years, but wonders whether someone in Barry may have kept in touch with him or may have known someone who did.

She has three other fragments of information that may be of help: at one stage, her dad worked for Pioneer Concrete; her father's mother was Irene Jones, whose maiden name was Edwards, and Irene lived in Abergele; Brian McCarthy played darts with her father.

If you have any information that could help, please email: tim.chapman@glamorgan-gem.co.uk.

JAM FUND donors

THE Jam Fund, which was set up in memory of Jamie Adamson in 2005, has made more donations to help children suffering from serious health problems.

Jamie's father Paul, who runs the charity, recently donated £2,000 to help a teenager in County Durham who has a muscle-wasting illness. He has also given £1,000 to help a little girl in Barry, following treatment for a tumour.

Since 2005, the fund has raised more than £400,000 to help youngsters and their families.

More Jam Fund news soon. If anyone would like to make a donation, go to: www.jamfund.co.uk.

UWC Atlantic College project rated one of the world's greatest engineering feats

WORLD famous engineering projects, such as Concorde, Alan Turing's cipher decoder, the Channel Tunnel, London's Tower Bridge, and the Jaguar E Type, are some of the greatest the world has ever seen – and now a prestigious award will see a project from Atlantic College take its place next to these icons.

The rigid hull inflatable boat (RIB), developed in the 1960s by Rear-Admiral Desmond Hoare, the founding Principal of UWC Atlantic College, that became the world's most widely-used craft for inshore rescue, has been awarded the Institution of Mechanical Engineers' Engineering Heritage Award.

The awards recognise irreplaceable artefacts to celebrate and raise public awareness for the vital role mechanical engineering plays in modern life.

Initially conceived by Rear-Admiral Hoare, the early RIB X craft were built and test-driven along the dramatic Bristol Channel coastline by Atlantic College students.

Now known as the Atlantic Class, the design, which developed from the original 'X Alpha' prototype, revolutionised maritime rescue worldwide and became the model for RNLI inshore boats across Britain.

The patent for the RIB was created by Rear-Admiral Hoare who donated it to the RNLI for £1 in 1973, and a copy of the still uncashed cheque hangs in a frame on a wall at the college.

The development of the RIB commenced shortly after the college's opening at the 12th century St Donat's Castle near Llantwit Major in 1962. Today, UWC Atlantic College is recognised as the founding member of the global United World Colleges education movement.

A key element of the award was the college's work in the restoration, exhibition and use of one of the original RIBs, known by the name 'X Alpha', which the Institution's Heritage Committee recognise as an important engineering artefact.

Accepting the award on behalf of the college and the late Rear-Admiral Desmond Hoare, UWC Atlantic College Principal Peter T Howe, said:

"It is an honour to have the Institution of Mechanical Engineers recognise the work of our first principal and the earliest students of our college to develop the RIB.

"The legacy of building, testing, and refining rescue boat design continues here to this day, as does the humanitarian spirit that saw the patent gifted to the RNLI for the saving of lives."

Speaking at the celebration event, Carolyn Griffiths, president of The Institution of Mechanical Engineers, said: "The development of X Alpha, one of the very first RIBs, is a fantastic example of UK engineering.

"The impressive innovation of developing a high-performance hull, inflatable tubes, open transom and powerful engines was a step change in maritime rescue.

"Its pioneering success led directly to the development of RNLI Atlantic Class lifeboats and has helped save countless lives at sea."

The committee also praised the college's work in continuing the legacy of the RIB to support humanitarian projects across the globe.

UWC Atlantic College alumni have also travelled to Lesbos, to serve as volunteer boat crew with the Atlantic Pacific International Rescue Boat Project.

This work has alumni putting the lifesaving skills they have developed at the college to protect the lives of refugees who have been forced to brave the perilous Mediterranean Sea crossing.

The Institution of Mechanical Engineers was established in 1847 and has some of the world's greatest engineers in its history books.

The Institution's president, Carolyn Griffiths, joined UWC Atlantic College staff and students at the historic castle campus to present the plaque, which will officially mark the site where the first RIB was created by Rear-Admiral Desmond Hoare and his students.

Jackdaw is caught on freshly-painted rugby posts in freak accident

• Sadly, the jackdaw misjudged its flight and got stuck to the crossbar.

A JACKDAW lost its life after becoming stuck to freshly-painted rugby posts at Tondu RFC.

RSPCA Cymru attended, after the jackdaw had become stuck on the crossbar, with one of its wings hanging downwards.

The freak accident happened at the Pandy Park rugby ground, in the Aberkenfig area, on Monday, July 17.

The charity attended within 15 minutes of receiving a call, and got up to the jackdaw using a ladder.

Sadly, the bird had a heavily-damaged wing from the ordeal, and was smothered in gloss paint – and had to be put to sleep to prevent suffering.

RSPCA animal welfare officer Andrew Harris said: "The posts were painted the day before – this poor jackdaw clearly misjudged his flight and flew straight into the crossbar.

"Pure and simple, this was a freak accident, for which nobody should shoulder any blame and which could not realistically have been prevented.

"While we were able to rescue the jackdaw from the posts, his wing injuries were severe and he had to be put to sleep.

"Helping wildlife is a huge part of the RSPCA's work. This accident is just one example of how everyday situations do, on occasions, lead to the RSPCA being called out to tend to wild animals."

If you wish to help the RSPCA with its animal welfare work, you can give £3 now by texting LOVE to 87023 (text costs £3 plus one standard network rate message). It is a charity that relies on public donations to exist.

It had suffered severe injuries to its wing and had to be put to sleep.

Anguish of women who received 'mesh' treatment

by TIM CHAPMAN
07891 690798 or email tim.chapman@glamorgan-gem.co.uk

Mrs Pauline Inch: the meeting heard women's heartrending stories of implants.

A Barry woman has told The GEM of the anguish and pain suffered by some patients who have received medical 'mesh implants'.

Mrs Pauline Inch (60) says that some women who received the treatment suffered serious health problems and endured bouts of depression.

For many women suffering the distressing effects of stress urinary incontinence and pelvic organ prolapse, surgical procedures using vaginal mesh devices have provided an effective form of treatment which can be far less invasive than alternative surgical procedures. However, the safety and efficacy of surgery using mesh devices has been questioned by a community of patients and clinicians.

Mrs Inch attended a parliamentary meeting at Westminster on July 18 hosted by Owen Smith, the MP for Pontypridd, which was addressed by leading gynaecologists, urologists, and 'Sling the Mesh' campaigner Kath Sansom.

Pauline, who says she knows of sufferers in Barry and Bridgend, told The GEM: "The meeting in Parliament was chaired by Owen Smith and there was a panel of eminent surgeons.

"It was well attended by over 120 women from all over the country who had suffered from an implant at some time in their lives.

"We heard that incidents had been under-reported because staff were worried how it would reflect on them.

"We also heard that the old way of surgery had very little failures compared to the mesh method, but the mesh was deemed cheaper and more cost effective.

"Even that has not been really true, because of the additional cost of medication to help affected patients through the painful life that they have to endure afterwards."

Alternatives treatments can include using 'bulking agents' such as a polyacrylamide hydrogel, pessaries or tissue grafts.

One consultant urogynaecologist told the meeting that there is a better way of solving the problem.

Pauline said: "There always was, so why was it ignored? Only 40 per cent of surgeons reported their results to the authorities, so the problem was played down, and the plight of women victims rejected.

"These women had to suffer physical and mental pain while their bodies rejected the intruder inside of them.

"Some of the medication didn't help their mental state, which was compounded by some of their GPs telling them that the pain was psychosomatic."

Pauline said that during the Westminster meeting some of the women were able to recount stories about how devastated their lives had been following treatment.

She said: "The women were allowed to voice their feelings, and for two hours we listened to the torture that these ladies had to endure.

"The stories told at that meeting left most in the room with tears in their eyes, men in the room openly crying while listening to the ordeals of some women.

"One woman from north Wales told the assembled group that she was an outdoor person who regularly went walking in the mountains of Wales with her husband and daughter before her operation; now she is a wreck, unable to walk down to the high street to shop, let alone climb a mountain.

"When she first started to suffer from the symptoms of mesh, she was told that 'it was all in her mind', and just get on with her life.

"This lady doubted herself, and was twice put into care for mental issues; she also tried to kill herself to end the pain.

"Another told of the suffering experienced by the husbands and families of victims, it was not just the patient who suffered.

"Her husband was a 'brick' to her, and stood by her through the many years that she suffered. They hadn't had sex for years due to the extreme pain that she was in."

Pauline said a GP told the meeting that some colleagues had been ignorant of issues surrounding the mesh treatment and he was trying to educate them and surgeons on its failings.

All GPs had been able to do was refer women back to specialists who had caused the problem in the first place. Pauline says she herself suffers horrendous pain. "The top of my legs hurt, my groin feels as if it has barbed wire in there, and it's as if someone's put a hatchet in my lower back."

When she spoke to one surgeon about removing her mesh, he told her: "There's nothing that can be done. No surgeon would come near you."

The problem is too complex. Pauline's mesh is now embedded in her abdominal walls, part of her bowel, and her organs.

She said she wanted to thank her Assembly Member Jane Hutt who had been a huge support throughout her ordeal.

Prior to the meeting, Owen Smith said: "In seven years of being an MP, this is one of the worst medical issues I have come across.

"I was first contacted by a constituent suffering from chronic pain as a result of the procedure, and since getting in touch with the 'Sling the Mesh' campaign, I have been contacted by countless women who have shared their devastating stories following mesh surgery.

"It is my hope that the Government will take action to address this growing issue and immediately review mesh treatment."

An NHS England Mesh Working Group report has been issued and Mr Smith said: "Mesh injured women will be deeply disappointed by the outcomes of the final NHS England Review, which seems to have made little progress since its interim report came out over a year ago.

"This was an opportunity for the NHS to take a lead and recommend a pause in the use of mesh until we know precisely how many women have been adversely affected by the product.

"Instead, they appear content to allow mesh to be widely used, despite growing, international concerns about its potential ill effects.

"Many companies have already taken their mesh products off the market – that alone should tell us something is not right with these devices."

The Mesh Oversight Group Report was published by NHS England last month.

It says: "This report sets out clear and achievable steps to improve the care of women with stress urinary incontinence (SUI) and pelvic organ prolapse (POP). "It is a direct and practical response to the serious issues raised by patients and the recommendations published in the interim report in 2015.

"It describes how improvements will be met in patient information and consent, shared decision-making, procedure recording and complication reporting as part of professional clinical practice.

"It also describes measures to address the knowledge level in general practice, where the majority of initial consultations occur and patients may later present with complications.

"This report also has a particular focus on those women who have developed complications and their referral and access to self-declared specialist centres with multidisciplinary teams able to advise on and treat complications and post-operative problems."

The report is available to see online at: https://www.england.nhs.uk/wp-content/uploads/2017/07/mesh-oversight-group-report.pdf.

'GIVING YOUNG PEOPLE A VOICE (AND A SAY) IN THE COMMUNITY'

OVER the past few weeks, I have been inspired by the positive spirit and commitment of young people in the Vale in their schools, at civic events,and in the community.

Attending Barry Comprehensive School's production of Billy Elliot was a delight, with pupils showcasing impressive acting and musical skills and thoroughly enjoying themselves – with the support of their teachers – past and present.

The Vale Youth Forum AGM was also an impressive event and provided an opportunity for me to thank the young people I meet regularly in the Vale Youth Forum, Vale Youth Cabinet and Vale People First.

The theme of the Vale Youth Forum AGM was 'Giving Young People a Voice in the Vale of Glamorgan and beyond.'

The Vale Youth Forum has also been rolling out the 'Make your Mark' campaign for the UK Youth Parliament consultation, to find out what young people think are the top issues of concern.

Members of the Forum, local youth action groups and school councils, encouraged young people to vote and 4,136 young people took part. This was the highest turn-out in Wales.

The top three issues for young people in the Vale are a curriculum to prepare us for life; votes at 16, and transport.

It is important for their elected representatives to respond to these issues and report back on action taken.

I am pleased the Vale Youth Forum met Professor Donaldson when he first came to Wales to help the Welsh Government develop a new curriculum – which is now being developed, and implemented – with the views of young people taken into account.

I have also met with Vale Youth Forum members to receive their report on transport issues which have a major impact on young people's lives - particularly in rural areas.

In their annual report, the Vale Youth Forum said they had attended a Young Wales Reference Group to meet Welsh Government officials, and help them with updating the 'Respecting Others' guidance for schools, pupils and parents.

ASSEMBLY NOTES

by VALE AM JANE HUTT
(Leader of the House)

They also took part in workshops on anti-bullying, emotional health and resilience, and the Well-being of Future Generations Act.

A few weeks ago, I attended the launch of Llamau's 'End Youth Homelessness' campaign, launched by the First Minister, Carwyn Jones AM and actor/activist Michael Sheen.

He interviewed two inspiring young people who had suffered homelessness while still at school, due to family breakdown.

With the help of Llamau, which supports young people in housing need, these young people have turned their lives around.

They are now helping to prevent youth homelessness by telling us their stories so we can learn from them and help get the right services and policies in place at the right time.

In the last week of this Assembly term, a landmark policy for young people in Wales was announced in the Senedd.

Mark Drakeford AM, Cabinet Secretary for Finance and Local Government, announced he would consult on a package of electoral reform measures, including plans for 16-year-olds to vote, and piloting schemes for online voting.

He visited a Llamau group in Bridgend to encourage young people to vote and said: "There's no reason why 16 and 17-year-olds can marry, pay taxes and join the army, but can't vote in our elections."

Young people in the Vale clearly agree with this and I look forward to supporting this new Welsh legislation and the Welsh Youth Parliament, which is being developed.

I am inspired by our young people as they go forward this summer to further studies, work, apprenticeships – and a stronger voice in our civic life.

I want to do everything I can to support them.

Council launches support website for local business

THE Vale Council's newly-created economic development team have redesigned a business support website that offers an easy way for businesses and community groups to find information.

Visitors can access sections on topics such as investment, funding and advice.

The aim is to build the capacity of groups in the area and encouraging them to become more sustainable.

The site also provides links to resources and business support organisations and highlights the latest funding and investment opportunities.

The website will also be a place to keep up to date on the Vale's Enterprise Zone and the local authority's role in the Cardiff Capital Region City Deal.

Coun Jonathan Bird, cabinet member for regeneration and planning said: "We hope that businesses and community members find the redesigned site a useful resource and a one-stop shop for information."

The redesigned website is part of an outreach strategy, and is aimed at strengthening ties between the Council and businesses in the area.

Sea cadets call for volunteers to keep up the good work...

The Penarth Sea Cadets will be holding their AGM on Thursday, August 31, at 6.30pm in their headquarters at the top of Stanwell Crescent, CF64 1DF.

A spokesman said: "All parents and members of the public will be most welcome.

"Due to the structure of Sea Cadet Units, in that each unit is a separate charity, it is a statutory obligation that each unit should have a fully-functioning management committee.

"This committee oversees the financial aspects of the unit and makes sure that the governance of the unit is carried out correctly.

"We meet once a month on a Tuesday evening for about an hour and we have no direct contact with the cadets.

"We would welcome any adult who has an inclination towards youth welfare and thinks that they may like to join us. Without a functioning management committee, the unit would be forced to close, which would be very sad, after having survived and prospered for 70 years.

"The young people gain a great deal from belonging to the Sea Cadets, as they are able to take part in many activities.

"They also develop a sense of responsibility and of personal pride which helps greatly in their lives, both inside the unit and in the world outside, as they mature into young adults."

AS BUSINESS AND UNION LEADERS HIT OUT OVER HALT TO THE ELECTRIFICATION OF RAIL LINE...

Conflicting views on future of trains in south Wales

LAST week, Welsh business and union leaders expressed disappointment at the UK Government's decision not to electrify the Great Western main line in Wales, writes TIM CHAPMAN.

The route takes in Newport, Cardiff, Bridgend and Swansea.

Wales TUC General Secretary Martin Mansfield claimed the decision showed the UK Government was turning its back on the Welsh economy.

"First, they went back on the promise to electrify the Valley lines, and the decision to ditch their pledge to Swansea is a fresh insult to the people of Wales.

"If work had started at the Swansea end, there is no way they'd have turned off the money before electrification had reached Reading.

"Why do UK Ministers think it's acceptable for Wales to be denied funding and to get a second-rate service?"

Vale MP and Secretary of State for Wales Alun Cairns, stated that a leap in technology was behind the decision and a new 'service hub' would be a benefit to Swansea.

He explained: "The latest technology allows us to bring the most modern trains in the world to Swansea at a much earlier stage than we had predicted.

"They are based on the Japanese bullet trains and will be maintained in Swansea, where the service hub will be located. This is a clear commitment to the area and its future.

"There's little sense in applying old technology when we have a far superior option available to us. I am delighted that passengers to and from Swansea will soon be enjoying some of the most modern trains in the world, with a higher capacity, better comfort, and quicker travel times.

"It would be nonsensical for us as a Government to install old technology when these, the most modern trains in the world, will be taking 15 minutes off the journey time."

Local rail enthusiast Mike Wilcock provided The GEM with an image of one of the new trains.

He said that the introduction of the trains, which are powered by both electricity or an on-board diesel engine, meant electrification wasn't required.

It would just mean switching to the diesel engine when the train sets off from Cardiff to Swansea.

Mike said: "The new trains don't need electrification. The trains are bi-mode and built by Hitachi.

"They can be run on diesel power, too, so there is no need for power lines to Swansea through Bridgend. They've already been running to Swansea for six months."

Electrification requires a pantograph system in which the train gets electricity from the cables above it.

Mike added: "It would cost millions (to electrify the line to Swansea) because some bridges would have to be lifted – such as at Pontyclun – so the pantograph could operate.

"Electrification would mean major inconvenience to motorists because roads would need to be closed as bridges are lifted to take account of the catenary (flexible wiring on a curve).

"Some Cardiff city centre bridges were closed for months.

Sub-stations along the line would also have been built to feed the power lines, and every few hundred metres, a gantry would be needed to hang the wires for the power lines to feed the trains."

In the next five to 10 years, Mike believes trains could become battery-powered, rather than diesel-powered.

'Policing will one day be devolved to Wales' – SAYS COMMISSIONER

A POLICE boss believes the devolution of policing to Wales is inevitable, saying it's "a matter of when, not if".

According to Arfon Jones, the newly-elected chairman of the All-Wales Policing Group, there is now an unstoppable momentum in favour of the idea.

Mr Jones, the North Wales Police and Crime Commissioner, said support for devolving the issue was unanimous among the four Welsh commissioners, including south Wales' Alun Michael.

Although not legally devolved, many of the other areas of the criminal justice system, like the Crown Prosecution Service and the courts service, already operate with all-Wales structures.

Mr Jones said: "The four police and crime commissioners are keen to see more responsibilities devolved to Wales.

"We welcome the fact that the Ministry of Justice is moving towards devolving more responsibilities to commissioners around victims and witnesses. This is a step in the right direction.

"We believe policing should be completely devolved to Wales and it's only a matter of time before it is, but we need to convince the Secretary of State, Alun Cairns, of that and up until now, we haven't had much success.

North Wales Police and Crime Commissioner Arfon Jones.

"He is against the idea, because several people tried to move amendments to the Wales Bill to devolve such things as youth justice.

"The Government didn't support it, so it didn't go through – which is a shame, because youth justice is the only part of children's services which is not devolved to Wales.

"Other areas, like education, health and social care, are all devolved – then you've got youth justice, which still comes under the Ministry of Justice in London. It's totally illogical."

He said: "It might take 10 or 20 years, but it's important that we are properly prepared and that we have the right structures in place.

"It would make sense if criminal justice was totally devolved as well, the same as it is in Greater Manchester.

"Policing and criminal justice are devolved there to the mayor Andy Burnham, and if they can do it in Manchester, I don't see any reason why they can't do it in Wales.

"To have certain elements of criminal justice outside of that sort of sphere doesn't make sense, because you need everything together, as part of one integrated service.

"When you have one bit of a service devolved and not the others, all it does is muddy the waters and it causes more problems and causes more legal challenges.

"There have been a few legal challenges between the Welsh Government and Westminster and I can see more happening until policing is finally and rightly devolved to the people of Wales.

"A case in point is the confusion around the apprenticeship levy, where policing is not devolved and training is – with the likely end result that Welsh police officers may not get the same level of training because of the impasse between the two governments."

AM requests update on 'mesh implant' issue

THE Vale Assembly Member, Jane Hutt, welcomed a decision to hold a meeting in London, which highlighted how some women have suffered through medical 'mesh implants'.

It was hosted in Westminster by Owen Smith MP on July 18 and brought together women from across the UK, leading medical professionals and 'Sling the Mesh' campaigner Kath Sansom.

The AM said: "For many years, I have supported women in the Vale who have suffered life-changing side effects as the result of the use of surgical mesh and tape.

"I was pleased to hear about this very important meeting in Westminster and was glad that there was so much support from health professionals.

"I have forwarded my constituent's report of the meeting to the Health Secretary Vaughan Gething, asking for an update on the latest developments at a UK-wide level, including the Welsh Government."

Suburban delights for Vale Ramblers

WHAT a lovely walk the Vale Ramblers had recently – different from their usual fare – through Cardiff suburban areas and it was a real gem!

It's always amazing how many green spaces are hidden away in our towns and cities. A group of 21 started out with the sunshine bravely breaking through, from the iconic Scott Memorial in Roath Park.

Having skirted the lake, full of early morning runners, bravely avoiding the geese and swans, they walked up the leafy Nant-Fawr valley towards the Llanishen reservoirs.

The rest of the walk went through a lovely mix of local houses and yet more woodland pathways all the way to Cefn Onn Parc.

The pond with its plethora of benches, made a great lunch spot. A two-stop train ride then returned the group to Lake Road North.

The showers, sometimes heavy, didn't mar the enjoyment of a lovely day. A big thank you to Helen, who pulled out all the stops and delivered a wonderful walk, complete with delightful homemade shortbread for all!

Out & About with The GEM

THE BIG SICK OFFERS A THOROUGHLY ENGAGING LOOK AT MODERN LOVE

IF you're a fan of TV show Silicon Valley (and if not, then why not?) then you'll be aware of Kumail Nanjiani, who plays Dinesh.

What you probably won't be aware of was how he came to meet and fall in love with his wife, a tale recounted in The Big Sick.

Nanjiani plays Kumail, a comic who is working as an Uber driver to make ends meet. When he meets student Emily (Zoe Kazan) at one of his stand-up shows, their relationship starts to blossom, but when they break up after Kumail is unable to reconcile the wants of his parents, who wish to place him in an arranged marriage, with his own, Emily becomes ill and falls into a coma.

Kumail then finds himself forging a relationship with her mother and father (Holly Hunter and Ray Romano) all the while keeping the secret from his own parents...

The Big Sick is a story seemingly so far-fetched that you would imagine it was the plot of the sort of film Channel 5 show in the daytime. But rather than being a hospital-set drama or an indulgent recanting of how he met his wife and fell in love, Kumail Nanjiani and Emily Gordon's script, long with director Michael Showalter, fashions a heartwarming, near-the-knuckle story of loves won and lost, and modern-day relationships, set against a backdrop of a medical emergency.

It seems an awkward blend for a story (despite its basis in the truth) but the script has all the components you need. We're conditioned by the rules of romantic comedies that the couple meet, fall in love, undergo some dramatic change of circumstance which sends them irrevocably apart, before they reunite following an act of great courtship, in time for the credits to roll.

The Big Sick doesn't subvert these tropes; instead, it places them into a more realistic setting, and while it says much about how we view love and how it makes us learn things about ourselves, it also makes some salient points about being a Muslim in the modern world, where love is not necessarily required to be arranged, and the desire to break free from the conformity of it can be strong.

It's a film that cuts close to the bone in its depiction of relationships and the little quirks, and Nanjiani and Gordon deserve credit for not trying to soften anything. We have the beautifully played out moments of a burgeoning love, and then the hammer blow of it all blowing up around them; and it feels all too real, which is to be hugely admired – but not the ideal viewing for a recently-united couple looking for a date movie!

It's a story that plays out on several fronts – it's about growing up and realising what you want from life; it's about recognising the faults in yourself and, perhaps most importantly, it's about putting yourself before the expectations of family – and each element works succinctly and perfectly.

It helps that the film's cast is terrific. Nanjiani may have only had small roles (Silicon Valley aside) so far, but he is a charming and engaging lead, while his chemistry with Zoe Kazan is exceptionally played out, Kazan marking herself a niche, after Ruby Sparks and What If, as the alternative female romantic comedy lead.

Ray Romano and Holly Hunter are superb as Emily's parents, battling through their own issues as well as trying to support their daughter and forging a relationship with Kumail, while Anupam Kher and Zenobia Shroff as Kumail's parents, and Adeel Akhtar as his devout brother, are wonderful also, struggling to get Kumail to commit to the traditions of his religion.

What makes The Big Sick stand out, however, is how it plays all these disparate elements into one wholly satisfying film. On their own, they would be great subjects to tackle, but, together with a keen sense of humour, they form one of the most engaging films of the year so far.

VERDICT: An unflinching look at love, what we do for it and all the awkwardness that goes with it, The Big Sick is bittersweet triumph of a film, one that manages to grab you emotionally and hit your funny bone on a regular basis.

Excellent work all round from director, cast and writers, it's one of the most realistic takes on falling in love you will see. Essential viewing.

Barry entertainer Jasper's magical London theatre run

BARRY'S international award-winning magician, comedian and playwright, Jasper Blakeley, has his first London theatre run this month.

Barry entertainer Jasper Blakely is Vladimir Dimitri Kockov.

Jasper, who lives in Woodland Rise, says he is "thrilled" to be performing for five nights at The Secret Cellar near London's South Bank.

He told The GEM: "It is an extraordinary and unique subterranean theatre venue, which is in its second season of shows, all of which have a conjuring theme to them. It's amazing to have been asked to be a part of an incredible line-up of world-class magicians and entertainers.

"I've got the chance to perform my comedy illusions in an intimate environment, which means there's nowhere to hide when it comes to performing my particular type of magic."

Jasper is starring as a Russian-esque comedy mind-reader Vladimir Dimitri Kockov, in a 60-minute show.

Jasper said: "I'm probably the most unusual act appearing at The Secret Cellar this season, but I'm also taking this opportunity to check out the venue too because I've already been asked back to perform my Victorian paranormal play The Vienna Experiment at the end of September."

The play made its debut last year in Barry and was a success last October as part of the London Horror Festival at The Old Red Lion Theatre in Islington.

With two London producers on board, Jasper hopes it will get more good reviews that could lead to a UK-wide tour.

"It's very early days, but along with my performance partner and fellow actor, Rhoose resident Frank E Haschka, we're keen to see how far the play can go".

Jasper's comedy mind-reading performance runs at The Secret Cellar from August 2 to 6, and his Victorian play The Vienna Experiment runs from September 27 to October 1. See www.secretcellarlondon.com for more details.

Jasper will be returning to Barry in October with a 90-minute show.

Southern Comfort for Barry as folk legend heads for West End Club

Iain Matthews will be performing in Barry on Thursday, August 10.

FOLK legend Iain Matthews is the next guest at this year's Barry Arts Festival, performing on Thursday, August 10, at Barry West End Club.

Matthews was the singer for legendary English folk band Fairport Convention in the late 1960s before forming his own band, Matthews Southern Comfort.

The band reached number one in the UK charts with a cover of Joni Mitchell's song 'Woodstock' after becoming Tony Blackburn's Radio 1 'Single of the Week'.

Still a prolific writer and performer, Matthews has released more than 20 albums, in a career lasting more than half a century in music and will be playing two sets at the West End, starting at 8pm.

Barry Arts Festival organiser, Mike Duggan, said: "It is a great honour having somebody of Iain's talent and history in music playing here.

"Tickets are selling fast, and available from the West End Club, by telephoning me on 07561 143114, or going online at the website https://www.ticketsource.co.uk/barry-arts-festival

He added: "We would like to thank Barry Town Council and Newydd Housing for sponsoring this year's Arts Festival events."

Time to register for Romilly Junior Parkrun

BARRY Junior Parkrun launches at 9am on Sunday, August 13, in Romilly Park.

The event is organised by a dedicated group of local volunteers and is free.

Spokesman Rhodri Thomas said: "Junior Parkrun is for those aged four to 14 years old, and is open to everyone within those ages.

"Parents and guardians are welcome to join the juniors on the 2km two lap course through beautiful Romilly Park.

"Parkruns are incredibly welcoming and friendly, and are runs – not races!

"The event is timed and marshalled by volunteers, and while some children love to try to improve their personal best time, ultimately Parkrun should be for fun, and enjoyment is the priority."

Before joining in, all junior Parkrun participants must register on www.parkrun.org.uk, and will need to print their unique 'parkrun barcode' and remember to bring it with them to get a time. Results are sent to each participant by email or text.

Adults who accompany children don't cross the finishing line and don't get a finishing time – it's children who are the important ones!

Rhodri added: "Parkrun is reliant on volunteers and we are always on the look-out for more people to join the team."

BARRY ISLAND TOY AND TRAIN SALE

BARRY ISLAND Station will host the annual toy and train sale on Sunday, August 6 between 10.30am and 3pm.

The sister event, Cardiff toy and train sale, will be taking place at Penarth Leisure Centre on October 7) and at Barry Leisure Centre on September 24.

Organiser Chris Dyer said this week: "Barry Island attracts a great range of traders from both sides of the Severn Bridge and a wonderful array of stock is always available."

Famous names bear the brunt of a howling Porthcawl gale at the British Senior Open

THE Royal Porthcawl hosted the British Senior Open presented by Rolex last week, and it is fair to say that the course showed several sides of its character.

On Thursday (round one, and Sunday (round four) the links course was tough but fair, while on Saturday, round three, the benign conditions led to good scoring.

However, and what a however it is, Porthcawl showed its teeth on the Friday, as strong winds and horizontal rain left competitors battered, bruised, and in some cases utterly defeated.

As luck would have it, GEM photographer Glyn Evans was out and about on the Friday, spotting famous golfing names and, not surprisingly, they were short of smiles!

Bernhard Langer (above) knuckled down and got round in 74, on his way to a four-round total of 280 (four under par).

He clearly likes the Royal, as when the tournament was played here in 2014, the quiet and determined German was the victor then as well.

His reward for his all-round high quality golf was a cheque for €266,923.

The defending champion, Paul Broadhurst (below) had a poor start, with two 75s, but then had a 67 and a 73 to finish on 290 (six over par) and had the consolation of a cheque for €20,591.

The total prize fund, incidentally, was £1.5 million.

Colin Montgomerie (below right) had a 76 in the wind on the Friday, and eventually finished one shot behind Broadhurst, with a cheque for €16,171.

ABOVE: Jose Maria Olazabal did not have a lot to smile about, finishing on 297, (13 over)

ABOVE: Ian Woosnam kept going, but finished on a total of 296, 12 over par.

John Daly took 80 in the Friday gale, and had to resort to waterproofs, which were not as colourful as his usual golf trousers !

ABOVE: Sir Nick Faldo had to foght back after a 79 on day one and finished on 16 over..

ABOVE: Tom Watson finished on 7 over, with a third round 67 his best score.

Miguel Angel Jiminez was rarely without his trademark cigar. He was well down the field after two rounds, but a storming 65 in round three brought him back into the mix. However, a last round 73 meant an 11th place finish on three over (287) – and a consolation cheque for €28,447.

Ramblers set off on a 2,000 miles challenge

BRIDGEND Ramblers have set themselves a challenge for the month of August – to walk a total of 2,000 miles between them.

The club has more than 100 members who walk regularly, so an average of 20 miles a month is not overly ambitious.

Some of the longer walkers may walk 20 miles a week, whereas the Thursday strollers only walk three or four miles once a fortnight.

There are 18 walks in total on the programme (see www.bridgendrmblers.co.uk) for the month of August, so the walkers need to average 120 miles per walk.

Eleven walkers going 11 miles on a long walk will deliver the goods, but 24 walkers are needed on the five-mile Sunday short walk.

As well as the programmed walks, dog walkers and strollers are welcome; all contributions will be accepted.

The Ramblers' website www.walespedometerchallenge.org.uk will be used to record their efforts and progress.

Anyone wishing to record their walking can do so at this site and use it as a personal challenge to extend their walking exercise.

Regular walking has numerous health benefits, not purely to improve general fitness but also to counteract some physical and psychological issues. Walking with a group of others also has social benefits.

Don't forget – you're only two feet away from a good walk; look down and you'll see them!

Vale of Glamorgan Agricultural Show

WEDNESDAY AUGUST 9TH, 2017 • FONMON CASTLE

We would like to wish our pets and owners an enjoyable day at The Vale Show

Well established RCVS accredited small animal practice providing a personal service and daily veterinary clinics including Saturday mornings.

A message from the Show Chairman, Lynn Price

'WELCOME TO THE 245th VALE SHOW!'

ON behalf of the show committee, I would like to invite you to join us at the 2017 Vale of Glamorgan Show, which will be held in Fonmon Castle grounds. This will be the 245th year for the show!

I have the great honour of fulfilling the role of Chairman for the next two years, which is a great privilege. I would like to thank Mrs Liz Synan for her outstanding contribution as Chairman over the last two years and I know that Liz will continue to support the show.

I would like to welcome this year's president, Mrs Morfudd Meredith and her husband Alan. Mrs Meredith is Her Majesty's Lord-Lieutenant of South Glamorgan, is a vice-president and council member of the Royal Welsh Agricultural Society, and has an active role on her family farm. We would like to congratulate Mrs Meredith on her election as the 2017 Show President – we hope that she has an enjoyable day.

This year's show really does have something for everyone – we have livestock, hundreds of trade stands, the shopping mall, competitive sheep shearing, craft marquee, home produce competitions, a huge dog show, and a busy programme of entertainment.

As the countryside ring programme continues to expand, we are introducing new and exciting things to the show. This year, we have the Welsh Axe Men, the Quack Pack, Gun dog demonstrations and the South Wales Fire and Rescue Service.

There will be more agricultural demonstrations this year, including some impressive machinery and the cows on tour. The programme will culminate with a polocrosse match, the hunt scurry and an 'It's A Knock Out' competition.

The Vale of Glamorgan Show is one of the biggest and best one-day shows there is. This is only made possible by the dedication and hard work of the show committee, their families and friends and the support of the sponsors, exhibitors, judges, stewards and competitors that make the day such a success.

Finally, I would like to say a big thank you to our general secretary, Mrs Sarah Fenner and the show director, Mr John Hanks, who have worked tirelessly to get the showground ready; without them, there would be no show.

I hope that you can join us at this year's show on Wednesday, August 9. We hope that you have an enjoyable day and that we will see you again next year!

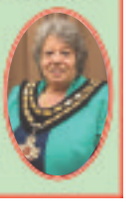
WEDNESDAY AUGUST 9TH, 2017 • FONMON CASTLE

Llantwit Major Town Council



Councillor Mrs Jayne Norman Town Mayor and Town Councillors wish success to the 2017 Vale of Glamorgan Show.

Extra sheep shearing thrills for the crowds this year!

The sheep shearing again promises to be a big crowd pleaser this year.

WITH an incredible atmosphere and the noise from cheering supporters raising the roof, the shearing tent is the place to be this year!

It will be the third year of hosting the shearing match at the Vale of Glamorgan Show on Wednesday, August 9 and it will have the extra excitement of being part of the Welsh Lamb Shearing Circuit this year.

We will see plenty of competitors take the stage across all four classes, with more than 800 sheep being sheared throughout the day.

We will also see last year's winner of the open class, Matthew Evans, competing to come out on top again. Since then, Matthew has become a Guinness World Record holder in late 2016; breaking the three-stand, eight-hour record for strongwool lambs. In doing so, he added 41 extra sheep to the record which previously stood for 18 years and now stands at an impressive 1,825 sheep. Will he be able to retain his title as champion this year?

Welsh shearing team manager and shearing steward, Martyn David, said: "This is my local show and I am incredibly proud of how well the shearing has been supported in the last three years by competitors, judges and the public, who eagerly watch throughout the day.

"I am so pleased with how well the show has progressed since it restarted in 2015. The professionalism of Welsh shearing has improved tremendously over the past few years – and everyone is delighted with their achievements being showcased on so many shearing stages across Wales.

"I would like to thank the show committee, volunteers and stewards for all their support, and look forward to this year's show. We would also like to thank our kind sponsors this year; Layton Edwards Fallen Stock Services, Horner Shearing, and The British Wool Board.

Horticulture's marquee of delights

LEFT: Which horticulture entries will win a prize this year?

THIS year's horticultural marquee plans to be overflowing with blooms of every colour and vegetables of all shapes and sizes.

We also have the pleasure of hosting a great children's section, which never ceases to amaze me with its high standard of entries.

There will be amazing miniature gardens, flower arrangements in a welly boot and, this year, I have set the challenge for a few different classes which include writing and poetry, so I'm excited to see the results.

Entries are already flooding in from far and wide and we look forward to welcoming new and old exhibitors.

Gail Wintle, Horticulture Secretary

Home produce puts local talent on show!

A WARM welcome to those skilled people of the Vale! It's time to dust down the sewing machine, get the paint brushes out, pick the fruit, nurture the flowers and practice baking!

There is a competition for everyone, and the show committee especially wish to welcome new talent, as well as those who have supported the show over the years.

A wide and varied schedule has been put together to hopefully attract as many competitors as possible.

Our marquee at the show is a showcase for the abundance of skills enjoyed by so many. There has been a particular resurgence in cooking skills of late, probably due to the many cookery television programmes shown recently.

Craft too, has seen many new and innovative ideas and as a committee, we try hard to keep up to date with both new trends, as well as traditional skills.

There are many children's classes, split into age ranges, and also a competitive writing display from Llangan and Sully Primary Schools.

Each year we have a wonderful raffle, donated by the committee of ladies. This year, the profit from the raffle will be donated to the Ty Hafan Children's Hospice. We also have a competition for an item to be donated to a children's hospital and this year it is a baby's memory blanket.

The schedule for home produce, floral, craft and children's competitions can be found on the Vale of Glamorgan Show website, or you can obtain a schedule from Secretary, Mrs Janet Lewis, West View, Keepers Lodge Farm, Hensol, Pontyclun, CF72 8JU. Entries should be sent to Mrs Lewis by August 5.

Once again, we hope to have record entries, so why not give it a go?

Vale of Glamorgan Agricultural Show

WEDNESDAY AUGUST 9TH, 2017 • FONMON CASTLE

Getting to the Vale Show by bus is easy!

GETTING to the Vale Show by bus is an easy option this year, with pick-up points all around the Vale

Cowbridge and Llantwit Major: Buses will depart from Cowbridge Town Hall Square and the pick up points are: Cowbridge, Town Hall Square, High Street, Westgate, Llantwit Major Road (B2470), Penyrheol Terrace, Llantwit Major Road and Llantwit Major By-pass, Llantwit Major, Llanmaes Road, Le-Pouliguen Way, Llantwit Major Interchange, Boverton Road, Boverton, Eglwys Brewis Road, Eglwys Brewis, Cowbridge Road, RAF St Athan East Gate, St Athan Village, Rectory Rd, Gileston Monument, B4265, to Vale Show as traffic.management system permits. Return as above in reverse.

Departure times from Cowbridge town centre are: 9am; 10am; 11am; 12pm; 1pm; 2.30pm; 3.30pm; 4.30pm; 5.30pm.

From Barry town centre: Buses will depart from Barry via Wyndham Street, Holton Road, Civic Offices, Broad Street, Ship Gyratory, St Nicholas Rd, Park Crescent, Pontypridd Road, A4226, Porthkerry Road, Rhoose, Fontygary Road, East Aberthaw to Vale Show as traffic.management system permits. Return as above in reverse except in Barry via Gladstone Road and Court Road to Wyndham Street.

Departure times from Barry town centre are: 9am; 10am; 11am; 12pm; 1pm; 2.30pm; 3.30pm; 4.30pm; 5.30pm.

Penarth and Dinas Powys: Buses will depart from Cogan, Windsor Road, Penarth, Windsor Arcade, Stanwell Road, Cefn Mably, Redlands Road, Eastbrook Road, Eastbrook, Cardiff Road, Dinas Powys, Cardiff Road (A4055), Barry Dock Link Road (A4231), Barry, Port Rd East, Port Rd West, A4226, B4265 to Vale Show as traffic.management system permits.

Return as above in reverse between show ground and Eastbrook then direct to Cogan via Barry Road and Barons Court junction then follows the outbound route through Penarth.

Departure times from Penarth are: 8.30am; 10.15am; 12pm; 1.45pm, 3.30pm; 5.05pm.

Cardiff Airport (Rhoose). There will also be a service from Rhoose Railway Station at Cardiff Airport. This will run hourly between 8.15am and 5.15pm.

However, it must be emphasised that these times are advisory, because the bus will wait for incoming trains from both Cardiff and Bridgend before departing for the show ground.

For all four bus services, there is a flat fare of £1.50 per person for adults, children, singles or returns. Welsh concessionary bus pass holders are free. The buses will stop at all recognised bus stops on route.

This service is operated by Watts Coaches (01446 781277) and financially supported by the Vale Council (01446 700111).

NOTE:

Trade stands are scheduled to close at the show at 6pm, and the show ground will close at 8pm

The bus timetables for the day can be viewed on http://valeofglamorganshow.co.uk/visitors/buses/

Vale Farmers' Market: The Food Court says Croeso!

RIGHT: Plenty of choice for everyone at the Food Court.

THE Vale Farmers' Market Food Court will once again be the must-see destination on the show field, especially for families.

As well as offering cooked food, drinks and a wide range of artisan produce to buy, there will be play activities delivered by the Vale of Glamorgan Play development team.

Ample seating, in the form of hay bales, will be available, so you can sit or browse the huge range of produce, while the children enjoy the numerous activities.

To whet your appetites while the children play, there will be pork rolls, lamb burgers, beef rolls, vegetarian food, duck burgers and speciality sausages – as well as tea, coffee, elderflower cordial and ice cream. Add to that, artisan cheeses, charcuterie, preserves, local cider, beer, gin, whiskey and liqueurs, hedgerow wines, cakes, brownies, flapjacks, shortbread, fudge, marshmallows, sourdough bread, veg boxes, herb-infused vinegars, oils, vegan pies, pork pies, and sausage rolls...

It's safe to say there will be something for everyone!

Every producer is from within Wales, and the majority are within 50 miles of the show field.

So, when you have watched the main ring attractions, admired the giant veg, and marvelled at the huge varieties of poultry, make your way to the Food Court for a sit down and a bite to eat.

The producers look forward to welcoming you all to the Food Court!

Poultry at the Vale Show

DESPITE the last six months of bird-flu being a tricky one for the poultry sector, there's no limit to chickens on display at this year's Vale of Glamorgan Show.

Showcasing some of the country's finest specimens, judges will be inspecting feather quality, scale condition and comb colour, to promote one lucky bird with the prize of best in show. The ever-popular egg classes will also take a strong position in the section, with classes for white, brown and other colour eggs, along with the 'the weirdest and most wonderful' shaped egg.

Contact the section secretary, Callum Griffiths on 01443 742891, or email callum@clydachfarmgroup.co.uk.

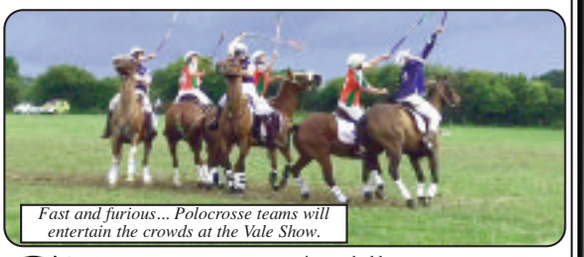
Vale of Glamorgan Agricultural Show

WEDNESDAY AUGUST 9TH, 2017 • FONMON CASTLE

You never know what you will find at the Vale Show. Young Joe Baker from Llantwit Major was helping out at The GEM's stall when he was joined by Place For Homes' friendly hippo!

The Vale Show's Polocrosse debut!



Fast and furious... Polocrosse teams will entertain the crowds at the Vale Show.

COME along and watch Welsh Dragons Polocrosse Club battle it out with Cotswolds Polocrosse Club, featuring World Cup players and UK squad members at the Vale Show.

Combining the strategy of netball, the toughness of rugby, and the ball skills of lacrosse, Polocrosse is an Australian sport where action, power, skill and pace dominate. The match consists of six fast and furious six-minute chukkas.

Polocrosse is the king of the one-horse sports – be there at 5.30pm for live action in the main ring, and take the opportunity to try it out on foot at our Polocrosse stand with Llangeinor Hunt Pony Club's Polocrosse team.

For more information on how to get involved, see http://www.pcuk.org/index.php/sports/polocrosse/ http://www.ukpolocrosse.co.uk or head to the Welsh Dragons Polocrosse Facebook page for dates of taster days and training sessions.

Something for everyone at the Vale Show!

I WOULD like to take this opportunity to encourage everyone to attend this year's Vale of Glamorgan Show – and to wish all of the organisers, competitors and exhibitors the very best of luck.

I may be more than a little biased when I say this, but I firmly believe it is Wales' best one-day agricultural show, and there is certainly something for everyone.

I always look forward to the Show, and last year I had the honour of serving as president, so I really got to see all of the hard work that goes into making it a success.

I would like to wish the very best to my successor, Mrs Morfudd Meredith, who I am sure will enjoy the role as much as I did.

So let's hope the weather treats us well and we once again all have a fantastic day at Fonmon Castle on Wednesday, August 9.

WEDNESDAY AUGUST 9TH, 2017 • FONMON CASTLE

COME AND MEET TY LLANDAFF AT THE VALE OF GLAMORGAN SHOW!

A Cardiff care home will be exhibiting at this year's Vale of Glamorgan Agricultural Show at Fonmon Castle Park.

Staff from Tŷ Llandaff, a residential, nursing and respite care home in Pontcanna, will join some 200 other trade stands attending the popular event near Cardiff Airport at Rhoose next Wednesday (August 9), which draws around 20,000 visitors each year.

The show was created by The Vale of Glamorgan Agricultural Society, a charity which promotes best practice in the agricultural industry.

Beginning in 1772, farmers would meet and compete in annual produce and livestock competitions.

Nowadays, the show sees exhibitors from a vast variety of backgrounds promoting their products and services – from renewable energy to hand made crafts.

Janice Evans, care home manager at Tŷ Llandaff, said: "We are so pleased to be attending this year's Vale of Glamorgan Show.

"It is the event of the year in our area and sees a fantastic number of people pass through its gates.

"As well as promoting the good work we do at the care home, including insight into our exceptional facilities and outstanding levels of care, above all, we see it as the perfect opportunity to chat to people face-to-face.

"Our professional and experienced management team will be manning the stand throughout the event, giving anyone who may be interested in visiting Tŷ Llandaff, either for themselves or for a relative, the opportunity to ask any specific questions that they may have or just pick up a brochure.

"We are all really looking forward to the day."

For more information about Tŷ Llandaff, contact Janice on 02920 600100, email info@tyllandaffcare.com or visit www.tyllandaffcare.com

Vale of Glamorgan Agricultural Show

WEDNESDAY AUGUST 9TH, 2017 • FONMON CASTLE

WELCOME FROM THE PRESIDENT

On show, Welsh agriculture and local produce at its best!

AUGUST is upon us and agricultural shows are being held in rural communities across Wales.

It gives me great pleasure, as President of the Vale of Glamorgan Agricultural Show 2017, to welcome you to the Show on Wednesday, August 9.

The Vale Show, which regularly attracts over 20,000 people, was first held some 245 years ago in Cowbridge; it is now held on a magnificent site at Fonmon, and, happily, continues to flourish.

I had the privilege of growing up on a family farm in north Wales and I have fond memories of our local county agricultural show, which was always great fun – and one of the highlights of my summer holidays.

It was only natural when I moved to live in the Vale of Glamorgan, that the Vale Show became a firm fixture in the calendar for us as a family, and we felt very much at home.

I am delighted that the Vale Show continues to thrive and evolve. It is a showcase for the very best of agriculture in the Vale of Glamorgan; a wonderful family day out, and an excellent opportunity to build bridges between town and country.

There are classes for horses, sheep, cattle, poultry and dogs, and you will see prize-winning animals during the Grand Parade in the main ring at 3pm. There will also be a chance to learn about farming and the origins of our food in the 'Farming in the Vale' marquee.

There will be milking demonstrations, calf feeding and a chance to ask questions of our local farmers from the 'Cows on Tour' team and our young farmers.

There are additional exciting attractions for visitors each year. There will be farming demonstrations, Polocrosse demonstrations, gun dog demonstrations, vintage tractors, an Army climbing wall – and the famous Quack Pack will be entertaining us.

In addition to the livestock exhibits, there will be horticultural, home produce and crafts areas, competitions for children, show jumping, dog shows, wool fleece competitions, beekeeping – and many other attractions.

There is alao a new picnic and play zone, a Punch and Judy Show and a fairground to keep the youngsters occupied.

There are over 200 trade stands selling a wide variety of goods, and you will have the chance to buy and enjoy delicious local produce in the Farmers' Market Food Court.

It has been a year of planning and hard work by many people to ensure a successful and productive show.

I should like to thank the organising show committee members, especially John Hanks, show director, Lynn Price, show chairman, Sarah Fenner, show secretary, and the stalwart team of volunteers and stewards for their goodwill and sterling work; the sponsors whose contributions are greatly appreciated, and all important for the show's financial viability, the vast number of exhibitors – and, very importantly – all the visitors for attending the Vale Show.

Thanks also go to the Vale of Glamorgan Council, South Wales Police, South Wales Fire and Rescue Service, Army and RAF Cadets, YFC, British Red Cross and other organisations, for their support in ensuring a safe and smooth-running show.

Please come along to support the Vale of Glamorgan Agricultural Show 2017 and enjoy Welsh agriculture and local produce at its best.

I look forward to meeting many of you at the showground and I hope that you have a wonderful day.

Vale Show President

Award celebrates Roy's 45 years in farming

THIS year, the Vale Show Committee was delighted to present the '2017 Lifetime Achievement Award' to Mr Roy Beckinsale

Roy closed the dairy door after a routine evening milking and was surprised to find a group of family, local farmers and the Vale Show Committee waiting to greet him.

The chairman, Mr Lynn Price, presented Roy with his award.

Roy spent most of his time at a young age with his grandparents at Witton Rosser Farm. He left school at 15 to continue working locally and in 1976 married Rose .

Roy has a family that he is very proud of – children Miriam and John and five grandchildren

Roy's day starts early with 5am morning milkings. His day is then filled with more milkings and additional farm work where he can fit it in!

Weekends are no different.

Having worked for 45 years within the farming industry, Roy has gained a huge knowledge and understanding that does not happen without hard work and commitment, all of which is much respected by the farmers Roy works with.

He has contributed greatly towards the continuation and growth of the progressive, positive agriculture industry in the Vale of Glamorgan today.

Thank you Roy.

Come along to the craft fair!

THE craft fair, now in its 39th year, will have a large variety of items for sale, guaranteed to be locally-made and of excellent quality.

The choices vary from woodwork, beautiful jewellery, leather work, walking sticks, drift wood, and pewter, to slate work, toys, and pottery, to name but a few.

The ladies will be able to stock up again with the Cardiganshire bee products i.e. varieties of honey facial and hand creams. There will be something for everyone to choose from.

Do come along and enjoy the atmosphere of this superb display, whilst also meeting friends.

The craft marquee will be open at 10am and will close at 6pm.

Vale dog show is a very special event

THE Vale of Glamorgan Agricultural Show is almost here once again.

Dog exhibitors look forward to this prestigious show every year as it is something special in the annual calendar.

It is held at a superb venue, has respected judges both from the UK and overseas, and also hosts one of the qualifying heats for the 'Junior Warrant of the Year' competition on behalf of the Kennel Club.

In addition, the exhibitors have the added bonus of access to the remainder of the show with horticulture, crafts, a food hall, shopping mall, individual stalls – and, of course, all sorts of livestock.

The show mirrors life in the rural community and is a great day out for the family. Also, everyone is guaranteed a warm welcome.

The dog section this year again has a numerically large entry, with the Best in Show judge making a special visit from Slovakia.

In addition, an eminent judge from the USA is officiating in the Working Group ring. When you visit, if you have any questions you would like answered please feel free to come and ask and we will do our best to resolve it for you.

The majority of pedigree breeds will be on display – from chihuahuas to Irish Wolfhounds – so please come and visit us.

'Impossible!' Residents say not enough time to respond on consultation

by GEM REPORTER
GOT A STORY?* Call us on 01446 774484 or email editorial@glamorgan-gem.co.uk

PEOPLE living in Barry have been given a new opportunity to have their say on an application from Biomass UK No. 2 Ltd to operate an energy plant at the docks, but one resident has told The GEM more time is needed for people to digest such a lengthy and complex document.

The deadline for responses is Monday, August 28.

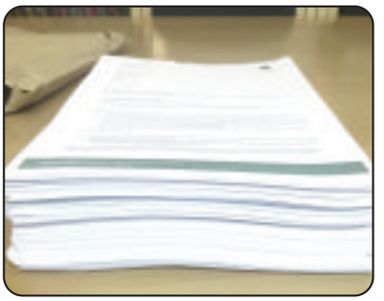
Matthew Lock, a supporter of the Docks Incinerator Action Group, told The GEM: "The image shows the scale of the problem.

"The latest NRW consultation document available at Barry Library is 1,044 pages long.

"Not only is it a massive task to read, it's not bound or filed in a folder in any way. Every page is loose and could easily be lost, removed, damaged or just be put back in the wrong order.

"It's also very technical and impossible to understand. It is also available at the Barry Town Council offices, where we were told an appointment would be required.

"I don't know how many pages the average resident of Barry might be able to get through in a day, but for even one resident out of the 55,000 people to read this and to understand this, and to respond to it within 27 days, is impossible."



The loose-leafed document at Barry Library.

Matthew added: "This is not a consultation. This is not public engagement. It is an insult to every person living in this town. This shows what an impossible task it is."

Nadia De Longhi, the operations manager for Natural Resources Wales explained that the length of the document was because NRW wanted to provide all the relevant information and wanted the process to be transparent.

She said: "We want to make sure we provide enough time for people to respond to our consultation, while at the same time keeping within our legal obligations for dealing with the application.

"We understand that applications like this are highly technical, and that is why we are working closely with the DIAG group to make sure they fully understand the new information we have received.

"For transparency, we decided to share the latest information in its entirely but we recognise that the volume and content is not easy to digest. We are confident that the DIAG group will raise any relevant issues to our attention on behalf of the community."

She added: "Of course, if we do decide to grant a permit to the company, there will also be a further consultation on our 'draft' decision, and an opportunity for people to submit any new information or evidence which they think we haven't considered."

Marathon run MP hands over £5,000 cheque to Vale charity

MP Alun Cairns hands over the cheque to his chosen charity.

THE Barry branch of Age Connects, including the Friends and Neighbours group, recently received a cheque for over £5,000 from Vale MP Alun Cairns.

Mr Cairns raised the sum during this year's London Marathon, when he was joined by 400,000 runners on the streets of the capital for the sixth time, and completed the 26.2 mile course in 3 hours, 36 minutes.

Age Connects and Friends and Neighbours, provide services and support to thousands of elderly members of the community and help reduce the fears of isolation and loneliness, which can be common in old age.

Handing over the cheque, Mr Cairns commented: "Despite the limited time I had to train for the Marathon this year, knowing I was running for Age Connects – a truly deserving charity – made me all the more determined to push on to the finish line.

"The actions, big and small, carried out by the charity and its volunteers have a priceless impact on Barry's elderly community.

Age Connects' Gay Fifield, said: "We were overwhelmed to be chosen as one of Alun's charities for this year's London Marathon. The figure he raised was far beyond our expectations and both Age Connects and Friends and Neighbours will benefit significantly."

AM MEETS BRAINY FRIENDS

ON July 11 Vale AM Jane Hutt welcomed Jan Hampson from Dinas Powys and her social group 'Brainy Friends' to the Senedd.

The group, which was set up by Jan, offers support for those affected by brain injury and the group holds monthly trips across south east Wales.

Ms Hutt said that she had also learnt more about the work of the brain injury charity Headway.

An expert's advice could help to avoid any dispute

BRENDAN SWEENEY of David Prosser & Co Solicitors, writes:

It is estimated that 60 per cent of the UK population do not have a Will.

A Will takes effect on your death and is an instruction as to what is to happen to your estate.

Probate disputes and challenges to Wills are becoming a growth area, which often leads to substantial costs.

We now live in a world where family relationships are often very complex, and expert advice regarding the drafting of a Will is essential.

A professional advisor can also advise you in relation to inheritance tax, and how you plan to minimise potential liabilities to inheritance tax

It is important that people are fully aware of their duties and financial responsibilities when they make a Will, to ensure that they comply with the technicalities that are required to have a valid Will.

The cost of a professionally-drafted Will, after taking advice, is considerably less than the costs that can be incurred if there is a dispute regarding your financial affairs after your death.

Substantial costs can also be saved by taking professional advice early, and putting in place Powers of Attorney – whereby you appoint trusted people to make decisions about your property and financial affairs and health and welfare, if your lose capacity.

The people appointed are made fully aware of their rights and responsibilities.

GLASTONBARRY FESTIVAL ROCKS ROMILLY PARK AROUND THE CLOCK

Photographs by
ANDY WICKS
Telephone 07855 374478

THE hugely-popular GlastonBARRY Festival this year featured an impressive 'Big Top' in Romilly Park.

Bands recreated the sounds of a host of top names and over 8,000 people attended the weekend – some had come from as far away as Beijing!

Photographer Andy Wicks was on hand to record the enthusiastic fans having a great time at the Vale festival.

Rotary youth exchange students are introduced to Welsh culture

The exchange students, Rotary hosts, and Dinas Powys Rotarians.

THE Dinas Powys Rotary Club recently welcomed 16 international exchange students to Cardiff Bay Yacht Club – for a meal of typical Welsh fare.

The Rotary International Youth Exchange programme provides an opportunity for overseas students to discover Wales and Welsh culture. This year, they were from as far away as Taiwan, India and California, as well as most European neighbours.

The Welsh summer camp is a two-week event organised by Rotary District and supported by a host of local Rotary clubs and essential volunteers.

The students had a full itinerary, which included visiting the Senedd, St Fagans, Big Pit, the Royal Mint, and cultural and industrial sites in Newport and Swansea.

There was also time to relax with a Powerboat trip in Cardiff Bay, visits to Dan-yr-Ogof, Porthcawl, the Glamorgan Cricket Club, Cardiff Castle and the Storey Arms Brecon Beacons activity centre, for a day of outdoor activities.

Thanks went to Allan Cook for sharing his knowledge of Welsh history and for his guided tour around St Fagans and the city centre, and to Jim the minibus driver on the camp.

Thanks also went to the Swalec Stadium staff, who explained the finer points of cricket at a short training session.

Hunt for the cruel person who used a crossbow to fire at ducks

POLICE have launched an investigation in an attempt to track down the person responsible for firing crossbow bolts at ducks in Cosmeston Park.

One bird has been taken away for treatment, and local rangers are trying to catch another one requiring help.

Coun Jonathan Bird, Vale Council cabinet member for regeneration and planning, said: "This is one of two recent incidents at Cosmeston Lakes Country Park in which ducks have been shot with bolts believed to have been fired from a crossbow.

"A male mallard with a crossbow bolt through its leg has been handed over to swan rescue, while the incidents have been reported to the police and RSPB.

"Rangers at the park will continue attempts to catch the female bird in an effort to ensure it also receives treatment for its injury.

"Shooting wildlife at the park with bolts is cruel and senseless and we will not hesitate to take criminal action against anyone responsible for such behaviour."

• If anyone has information relating to either incident, they can contact local police on 101; or telephone Crimestopppers, free and anonymously, on 0800 555 111.

Valeways walks

ON Wednesday, August 9, at 10.30am, the Barry coffee shop strollers meet at Romilly Cafe, Cold Knap, Barry.

Also on August 9, the Cowbridge coffee shop strollers meet at the Physic Garden Fountain at 2.30pm.

On Thursday, August 10, the secondary breast cancer strollers meet outside the visitor centre at Cosmeston Country Park at 10.30am.

WELLBEING WEBSITE IS LAUNCHED IN THE VALE

DEWIS CYMRU, a one-stop online directory for wellbeing in Wales, has been launched in the Vale, with support from the Vale of Glamorgan Council.

The website allows users to access information on services in areas such as health, care, benefits, money management, clubs, activities and family support.

Visitors to the website www.dewis.wales can select the category they are interested in and a range of advice and links to services is available.

Alternatively, it is possible to search by location to find a particular service in a specific area.

The directory covers the whole of Wales and there are already 1,200 wellbeing resources registered on it for Cardiff and the Vale – and almost 5,000 for the country as a whole.

Created to incorporate the new Social Services and Well Being Wales Act, Dewis Cymru aims to make information about services and support easily accessible to the people who need it.

Coun Gordon Kemp, cabinet member for social care, health and leisure, said: "This is a fantastic resource for people in the Vale looking for information on any number of subjects related to wellbeing."

Colour the Coach drawing competition – new deadline

National Express is extending the deadline for its children's drawing competition, which gives local youngsters the chance to see their design on the side of a coach.

As the school holidays get under way, the national transport company is giving children an extra two weeks to send in drawings of their favourite local landmarks, as part of the Colour the Coach competition.

Illustrator Alison Lodge, who is judging entries on behalf of National Express, urged youngsters to get creative over the next two weeks and enter the competition.

She said: "This is a superb opportunity for local kids to get creative and show off their talent, I'm looking for bold colourful designs of well known Welsh landmarks.

"With the deadline now extended – now is the time to brush off your brushes and draw your favourite landmark – you never know, it could end up on the side of a coach!"

National Express Coach managing director Chris Hardy said: "This competition is a great opportunity for mini Monets to put brush to canvas and send us their best landmark drawings with the chance to see their creation hit the road. We are encouraging all kids to pick up their pens and have a go at Colour the Coach."

'Colour the Coach' is open to children aged five to 15 who should simply draw their favourite local landmark on an A4 sheet of paper, using whatever drawing materials they prefer.

Entries to the competition must be landscape designs on A4 paper with: name, address, age, phone number and email address, written on the back. They should be sent to National Express Coach Art Competition, National Express House, Mill Lane, Birmingham, B5 6DD

• The deadline for entries is Tuesday, August 15.

The anniversary cake.

Friends and Neighbours celebrate 10th anniversary

Friends and Neighbours celebrated their 10th anniversary in style with an amazing party at Beryl Road Pioneer Hall in Barry.

The party started with a minute's silence for members past and those who couldn't be at the party due to illness.

There were some 75 members, including volunteers and a DVD was shown that had been put together by Andrea, one of the volunteers, with a voice-over by Chris Keegan, Andrea's son

The DVD was a trip down memory lane with photos of members past and present and video footage of trips, parties and meetings.

Lots of little clips triggered laughter from the members and a few tears as well. The DVD was well received by all in the room

A vote of thanks was given to Coun Nic Hodges, the Barry Town Mayor, and Coun Janice Charles, the Vale of Glamorgan Mayor – and also to Anthony Price of Barry Round Table, and Ann Hughes and Jane Lamey from Barry Rotary Club.

Community champions from Morrison's and Asda also attended the event. A superb buffet was enjoyed by all, including Pimms and squash.

Entertainment was provided by Bobby Newman, a local singer and guitarist, who had them all dancing away, including the Mayors, who both said they had enjoyed themselves immensely.

Norah Kinchen. Friends and Neighbours' longest standing member, was presented with a bouquet of flowers which she was so chuffed with.

Norah was asked to blow the candles out on the cake, and all the members were given a piece, along with a cup of tea or coffee.

Gay Fifield then gave a vote of thanks to all the members and volunteers for all their support. GF

Celtic Way open day

THANKS go to everyone who braved the rain on Sunday, July 23, to attend the Celtic Way Community Association open day.

The Mayor came along and opened the event in the hall, as it was so wet. The children were thrilled to be able to have photographs taken wearing her chain of office!

When the weather cleared, the outdoor activities took place, with the Airport fire engine and crew giving a brilliant display. There was a bouncy castle, a police emergency car, and a roundabout for the children, as well as refreshments and stalls.

The Vale School of Dance also presented a display.Thanks go to Rhoose Bowling Club, who provided tuition and the use of their facilities.

A wonderful day was had by all.

Proof that the weather need not spoil your day!

'Choosing Today's Mood'

HAVING roasted the previous week, this week has been wet, windy and rather depressing – such is the British summer and not the sort of day to even think of taking the camera out.

As you can see from one of the pictures, 'London Rain' by Nick Craddock, this is most definitely not the case. Stunning pictures can be created if we look hard enough to see them.

Or you could follow Bridgett Craddock's example 'Choosing today's mood' and go into the studio. Who's got a studio? Well, it's amazing the transformation that a white sheet or black curtain can make to a room.

Light from a window, a table-lamp, an angle-poise, or the flash on your phone camera, can create your own light.

There's always the summer holiday, like Mike Davies' picture of the Sydney Harbour Bridge and Opera House, 'Concerted effort', taken in the summer six months ago, down under.

'The Girl in the Spotty Dress' is a book about the life of a dancer, Pat Stewart, in the 1950s who lived her final years in the Vale. She became something of a celebrity after publication of a photograph taken on the pier at Blackpool by Bert Hardy, a professional photographer.

He used a 'Box Brownie', a very modest, affordable camera that you could buy from a chemist's shop. A basic camera; you pressed the button and hoped that it would 'turn out', not all did. The idea was to inspire people by showing what a simple camera could do.

Compared to pictures taken with a Box Brownie, most people's mobile phones produce amazing pictures. So, take your pictures, join the Vale Photographic Club and show them to other enthusiasts.

You will see, despite there being no meetings in July and August, that there is plenty going on; the Weekly Challenge produces some very interesting pictures and we'll be at The Vale Show in Fonmon Castle on August 9.

Just look for our 'feather' floating in the breeze, view the exhibition of members' pictures and have a chat with one of the members of the club. We pride ourselves on being the 'friendliest club in south Wales'.

Take a look at our website: http://www.vale-photographic-club.co.uk. We're also on Twitter@Vale Photo Club.

The club meets at Ystradowen Hall at 7.30pm on Friday evenings from September 8 and beginners, intermediate and experienced photographers are all very welcome, so why not pay us a visit?

Valeways walkers at Near Hearkening rock, one of four stones visited on the walk.

Valeways walkers on the trail of landmark stones

THE rain and thunder forecast by the Valeways' president did not deter several walkers from joining John for a nine-mile outing away from home territory.

They met at Symonds Yat Rock car park, before descending steeply through woodlands to reach the River Wye. Here they followed the old railway line, a victim of the Beeching axe, to reach Biblins Bridge.

On the way, they passed a canoe slalom course and watched swans dabbling in the river.

They left the river behind to climb steeply out of the valley, passing the nature reserve and going through woods to arrive at Near Hearkening rock, a large mass of conglomerate sandstone, said to be a listening post for game keepers of old, who thought its concave face helped them hear poachers.

The party dropped down the hill, passing the Suck Stone and on reaching the gravel track, turned south towards the village of Staunton.

The White Horse Inn was only 100 yards away, but before enjoying its hospitality, there was another stone to visit – the Buck stone.

This stone used to rock until it was vandalised in 1883, but still commands superb views across to Abergavenny and beyond. It was a short walk downhill to the pub for a lunch break.

Now came the hardest part of the walk – leaving the pub! The walk continued through Blake's wood,to reach the last of the four large stones – the Long Stone said to be the meeting point of forest tribes.

They walked through Marian's Enclosure (named after Maid Marian) towards Berry Hill, before heading north through Ellis Reddings Wood and back to the car park.

Vale Mayor has some invincible health visitors!

VALE MAYOR Coun Janice Charles was delighted to welcome two health visitors from the Vale Council's Flying Start programme to the parlour.

Pauline Crooke and Rhian Gibbon took part in NVNCBL – an obstacle course race at Margam Park. More obstacle course than race, it was a test of stamina, fitness and tolerance of mud!

They raised £156 for the Mayor's charity, Baby Basics, and commented that: "It was a challenge, but good fun with a great atmosphere, and we are glad that we did it!"

The Mayor said: "I can't praise Pauline and Rhian enough for their support – and I know that Baby Basics will BE very grateful indeed."

More information about the Mayor's charities can be found at www.valeofglamorgan.gov.uk

Join Ty Hafan's 'Army of Angels'

Peter and Connor Russ with family at Tŷ Hafan

A father whose son was supported by Tŷ Hafan as a child, is calling for more cyclists to join an 'Army of Angels' to raise money for the charity.

Peter Russ's son Connor attended the children's hospice at Sully until he reached the age of 18. Although the family no longer attend the hospice for short breaks, Peter volunteers as a sweeper marshal for the Taff Trail event.

Peter said: "Even though my son Connor now no longer uses Tŷ Hafan, as he has reached adulthood, they still provide support to his brother, myself and his mother.

"We feel a part of the Tŷ Hafan family as it has helped us tremendously over the years to deal with our son's problems.

"Tŷ Hafan is a focal point for the public to show their support for families like mine, and through events like the Taff Trail they raise much-needed funds.

"This is why I enjoy helping and supporting those people who give up their precious family time by entering events like this.

"It gives me great pride to think of all those who enter as an army of Tŷ Hafan Angels, who give their time and money to help show all those young children and families that they are loved and have a place to turn to when it is needed."

The Taff Trail Cycle Challenge spins off on September 3, with teams of four taking on either the 79km or 41km route.

Events manager Jodie Harris said: "Every year this is a sell-out event, so gather your team together quickly to register! Places are allocated on a strictly first-come, first-served basis.

"As you ride each mile, please know that you are helping us to raise the £4.3million annual running costs of our children's hospice, which enables us to provide our services to children and families from across Wales."

Plaid questions 'underspend' on housing support

PLAID Cymru councillor Ian Johnson has criticised the Vale of Glamorgan Council, after its annual accounts showed an underspend of £740,000 on funding intended for the county's poorest families.

The council told The GEM it encouraged people to come forward if they need help.

The council's 2016-17 accounts, when the council was run by Labour, were debated at the council's corporate performance and resources committee meeting, where Coun Johnson drew attention to the underspend of £193,000 on 'discretionary housing payments'; and more than half a million pounds (£547,000) on 'council tax reduction', after what council reports describe as "a lower than anticipated take-up" of the benefits.

Coun Johnson said: "Discretionary housing payments and the council tax reduction scheme are aimed at families in the Vale in the most difficult circumstances, so it shocks me that nearly three-quarters of a million pounds went back into the Vale's reserves, rather than supporting families in need.

"We hear daily about rising use of foodbanks and the growth of in-work poverty, so I cannot understand why a Labour-run council did not do more to direct this money to families – either through helping more people to apply or widening the criteria where possible. With 770 Vale families still paying the cruel and unnecessary bedroom tax and the number of families affected by the benefit cap trebled, due to nasty Tory welfare changes, this is money that could make the difference between eating and heating for many people."

Coun Andrew Parker, Vale Council cabinet member for housing and building services, explained that money for housing support is allocated following an application process and it is only possible to assist those that ask for help.

He added: "The council would urge anyone who believes they, or someone they know, may be eligible for either payment, and has not yet applied, to contact the benefits department, who will assist them.

"The council has paid out nearly £10 million as part of the council tax reduction scheme, helping households on low incomes meet council tax payments.

"We also endeavour to respond positively to requests for discretionary housing payments and the Vale was recently ranked as the fourth best performing authority in Wales in this area by Shelter Cymru.

"The entirety of the £233,606 grant received from the Department of Work and Pensions for discretionary housing payments has been allocated, while the council has spent £28,586 from its own resources to help those on low incomes pay their rent."

Pupils join together for Barry dance project

An aerial view of the pupils performing in Alexandra Gardens.

Motion Control Dance of Barry have recently been busy working with schools in the town on an open air dance project.

The 'Big Barry Dance' was a creative collaboration between Motion Control Dance, Bryn Hafren, Cadoxton, Jenner Park, Oakfield and High Street Primary schools.

It was funded by the Arts Council of Wales with the aim of getting students involved in physical activity over a two-week period.

The schools came together to share their experience in a large performance with a 'Big Barry Dance'.

Emma Mallam, of Motion Control, said: "Barry Town Council supported the project and the Town Mayor, Coun Nic Hodges, came to see the performance at Alexandra Gardens and was blown away with High Street Primary's performance.

"He could not believe what was achieved in just two weeks!"

Emma said the idea was to widen the students' horizons and improve their self-esteem by performing to a large audience of adults and their peers.

She added that through movement, students understood mood, expression and emotions, as well as numerical and spatial concepts.

She said: "The project was a huge success in each school, with all the year-6 girls performing their piece alongside Bryn Hafren dance club on their transition day, to make them feel part of their new school."

One Jenner Park student, aged 10, said: "The dance was epic and I want to do another one because it was so exciting."

An eight-year-old High Street Primary pupil said: "The best dance I have ever done in my life. I hope I can do it again. Thank you for coming to High Street Primary."

A Bryn Hafren girl, aged 12, said: "I really enjoyed making the year-6 girls feel special by performing with them on their transition day."

Mr Jones, a year-6 teacher at Jenner Park Primary, said: "I just wanted to say a huge thank you for your time, energy and enthusiasm in delivering your outstanding Transition Dance Programme at Jenner Park.

"During the rehearsal period, I saw a massive improvement in our pupils' confidence, both in the dance sessions themselves and in their approach to other areas, for example P.E.

"As for the performance itself, I was blown away by the standard and skill levels you helped our pupils reach."

Emma Mallam concluded: "Motion Control Dance would like to thank ACW, Barrry Town Council, Vale Youth Service and all the staff, students and parents at the schools we visited for making our project a truly wonderful experience for all."

The Bodies in Motion project can be booked for schools and can cover all aspects of the curriculum - for more information please contact info@motioncontroldance.com

Dinas Powys Rotary Club's parting gift of Dictionaries 4 Life to 81 school leavers

THE Dinas Powys Rotary Club has undertaken the annual donation of the Rotary 'Dictionaries 4 Life' to year-6 leavers at the two primary schools in the village.

The presentation was undertaken by Rotarians Tim Hubbard and David Williams, who visited Dinas Powys Primary School on July 19 and Martyn Williams and Alex Easton, who visited St Andrews Major Primary School on July 21.

After hearing about the work of Rotary Club in the community and around the world, each year-6 leaver was presented with their own dictionary.

They were gratefully received by the pupils, who then had them signed by friends and teachers, as a lasting memory of their time together.

Over the last four years, the presentation has become an established part of the leavers' assemblies. This year, members of the Rotary Club presented dictionaries to 81 schoolchildren, wished each of the children success in their continuing education, and hoped the dictionary will help them in their schoolwork – as well as being a useful reference tool for all of the family..

Water safety for summer

THE Royal National Lifeboat Institution (RNLI) recently issued its summer water safety message, ahead of the busiest time of the year for Welsh lifeboat crews and lifeguards.

Coastal death figures released by the RNLI, as part of its annual drowning prevention campaign 'Respect the Water', showed more people died at the Welsh coast in August than in any other month of the year.

The charity is calling on the public to help save more lives during the camapaign by remembering and sharing key survival skills.

The Widening Participation learners.

Graduation ceremony celebrates young people returning to education

CARDIFF and Vale College has held an inaugural graduation ceremony for students it has re-engaged back into education or training.

The college's Widening Participation team provides a range of progression opportunities for young people aged 16-25 who have found themselves not in education, employment or training (NEET) to give them a second chance.

This includes the Fast Forward programme, which focuses on personal and social skills development, work-related education and essential skills that can lead to a unique 'Passport to Progression' guaranteeing an interview for a mainstream course at CAVC.

The successful students have either re-engaged via the Connect programme supported by Families First programme in Cardiff, referrals from partner agencies, or have been signposted onto the European Social Fund – Inspire to Achieve programme which support students in maintaining their studies.

It has been a successful year for the college's Widening Participation learners. Nearly 90 per cent of students successfully completed their courses, despite many of them facing personal challenges throughout their time. Of those who did successfully complete the course, 100 per cent are progressing into education, training or employment.

CAVC Widening Participation Learner of the Year, Cole Chick, receives his award.

The learners, their families and friends were treated to performances by two very talented students, Sabrina Islam and Shaun Edwards, who expressed their views through rap and spoken word. There were also excellent videos of students' work who had been studying creative media and music technology.

The graduation ceremony, held in the College's Theatr Michael Sheen at its City Centre Campus, saw students from the Fast Forward courses held in east and west Cardiff, Connect to CAVC, alongside partnership courses with third sector partners, Ministry of Life and Media Academy Cardiff, collect their certificates.

Many of the learners collected a special award for 100 per cent attendance – quite an achievement, considering many of them had been or had been at risk of becoming NEET before coming to the college.

There was also a series of awards presented, with Most Improved Learner going to Marcus Barry from the Vale; Most Inspirational Student was Joel Curtis from Cardiff, and the overall CAVC Widening Participation Learner of the Year was Cole Chick, who studied creative media at Media Academy, Cardiff.

CAVC Widening Participation manager, Wayne Cater, said: "It was a very tough decision in selecting the overall Widening Participation Learner of the Year, but it was felt that Cole epitomises the inclusive, influential and inspirational vision of the college.

"Both his personal and academic progress during the year has been remarkable and his determination to succeed, alongside supporting others, is testament to the award recognition.

"We recognise the collaborative approach needed to support young people back into education and we take great care in providing pastoral support alongside the academic provision, which is brokered in partnership across the public, private and voluntary sector.

"This ensures early identification of needs of young people on engagement, creating innovative and relevant provision and securing progression routes for our students."

Cole offered unwavering support to his colleagues throughout his time on the course and often led discussions on everything from social media to politics and film. Throughout the year, he navigated through personal challenges while supporting fellow students, volunteering for LGBT charities and forums, and producing excellent work thoughout. Cole is progressing to a Level 3 Digital Media Production course at CAVC in September – skipping the Level 2 as he has already amassed so many credits on his BTEC.

"I heard of Media Academy Cardiff and that it was for people who had problems at school," Cole said. "I wanted to do film, so I got in touch and came in and saw it was really cool. It's been amazing – I joined late, but I caught up quickly.

"If I don't enjoy a project it can take me a long time to finish it and I get frustrated, but here I've been very passionate about what I'm doing and the atmosphere is so relaxed and everyone on the course is part of a close-knit group. Everyone helps each other and we co-operated all the time."

Cole made short films about specific areas of interest, such as health and wellbeing and LGBT history on his course, as well as collaborating on a stop-motion animation:

"I've always wanted to make films; I've wanted to be a director for as long as I can remember," he said. "I've now got on to a Level 3 Media Production course at Cardiff and Vale College and I'm really looking forward to it.

"Hopefully, I will go on to university to study film writing and film studies – that's my long-term goal."

Penarth park play area is transformed by revamp

THE Vale of Glamorgan Council has transformed Wordsworth Park in Penarth – by introducing bigger and brighter facilities for families to enjoy this summer.

Section 106 funding from a local development has been spent on new equipment, including a wheelchair-accessible roundabout, a flat-seat swing and wide-access gate, as well as other new additions. A public consultation was held in September and October last year, when children and local residents offered ideas on how they'd like to see the park enhanced.

The improvements have included revamping the play area with new equipment, safety surfacing, access improvements, bins and seating.

They are part of an ongoing series of investment in park facilities across the Vale. Wordsworth Park is the latest in a series of park improvements across Penarth, following Cwrt Y Vil, Plassey Sqaure, and Cliff Walk.

Members of Penarth Youth Action (PYA) were also consulted about changes to the park.

Alex McDonald, of Penarth Youth Action, said: "Now the changes have been made, I have never seen it so busy."

'Chariot Festival' brings communities together

A SPECIAL procession, ceremony and feast was organised on July 22 in Barry, aimed at bringing the community together.

The day was organised by Wales Tamil Sangam and the Hindu Cohesion Mandal, and was entitled the 'Vel-Ther Thirivizha with a Raathyatra' (Chariot Festival).

A spokeswoman reported: "We started the day with greeting the guests, invoking 'Tamil God, Lord Muruga'.

"At the stroke of the auspicious time of 12 noon, we started our walk from the Barry Memorial Hall, with councillors leading the route, and communities singing in praise of Lord Muruga and praying for peace.

"Our president, chairman and volunteers talked about the Indian tradition to members of the public, who also joined us on the walk.

"We walked through Gladstone Road and Holton Road, returning to the Memorial Hall by 1.30pm for special prayers for prosperity and peaceful communities.

"We were all worried by the weather forecast, but we had not a single drop of rain during the 45-minute spell of the Raathyatra.

Mmiraculously, we had the rain at the start of the puja – which makes the event very auspicious, and gave a feeling of direct blessing from the heavens above.

"We were inspired to have the disciplined, friendly Barry Heddlu helping us in organising the crowd.

"Labour black and minority ethnic officer Ms Dasi, and councillors from the Vale and Cardiff also joined the walk, showing strong support for our belief that will bring more prosperity to our working communities.

"It was then our children's time. They offered the 'Bhumi Pooja' (Worship for Mother Earth) with a unique cultural dance choreographed by Welsh dancer, Megan Lloyd (also an Indian classical dance teacher at India Dance Wales, Cardiff).

"The dance was full of energy and enthusiasm, with our children dressed in Bharatanatyam dance costumes.

"For the festival, an authentic south Indian feast was organised. The food was distinct, delicious, and brought nostalgic memories of Ther Tiruvizah.

"We thank Rita Limbrick, Cadoxton, GVS and Barry Communities First for all the help and support.

" We are happy that we were able to bring the community together in a festive spirit and inspire thriving communities in Barry.

"Happiness and smiles were exchanged throughout the day and the whole team was delighted with the programme. "

Geography workshop

IN April, year-9 geographers enjoyed a day of interactive hazard management provided by the British Cartographic Society entitled 'The Restless Earth', where pupils mapped and managed the Japanese earthquake and subsequent tsunami using GIS strategies and iPad technology.

It enabled the pupils to understand how maps are used in real life situations, while appreciating the range of cartographic techniques available.

Pupils were assigned different disaster recovery roles within their groups – military, medical, search and rescue, humanitarian or co-ordinator – with teamwork, and problem solving skills required for a successful outcome.

Year-8 creative writing

Congratulations to Eve Jeffreys of year-8, who was a finalist in the BBC 500 Words competition.

Her entry entitled 'Barbed Wire Love' is such a well-crafted piece about life in the trenches, that it may well inspire others to read more and write for pleasure.

Harpist's success

IN early May, our extremely-talented harpist, Huw Boucher, of year-9, was invited to play at the prestigious 25th Silver Anniversary luncheon by the Women of Wales, attended by the Princess Royal.

Huw was lucky enough to talk to the Princess when the event was held at the SSE SWALEC stadium in Cardiff.

Congratulations also to Huw, who competed in and won the National Final of Young Musician of the Year held at the Royal Welsh College of Music and Drama on May 6. Huw was up against other regional instrumental winners from all over GB and Ireland and put in an outstanding performance to be awarded first place.

Harpist Huw was also awarded first place in the harp competition at the National Urdd Eisteddfod held in Bridgend in June. This is the second year in a row that Huw has won this prestigious competition as his musical career continues to go from strength to strength.

Well done, Huw, all at Stanwell are very proud of your achievements.

Digital music album

PUPILS of Stanwell have the opportunity to take part in after-school 'digital music' lessons which teach them to use specialist software to compose and produce music.

These students have created the 2017 album to showcase their talents. They also produced a video showing the pupils completing a live studio mix, the finished track of which is included in the album. Happy digital listening everyone!

Year-8 creative project

AS part of the Lead Creative Schools Project, a lucky group of 10 year-8 students were invited to dine at the Michelin-starred Restaurant James Sommerin on Penarth sea front.

Their visit was recorded and made into a short film with the students writing reviews in Welsh of the evening for their app 'Perlau Penarth' which is available to download for free on the Apple store.

Urdd success

JUNE saw pupils from the Performing Arts Contemporary Dance Club compete in the Urdd Eisteddfod where they achieved third place at main stage.

Their talents were featured on S4C with a fantastic and moving performance of their Aberfan tribute number. Da iawn!

Creative exhibition

WE are very proud that some of our students' art work was selected for display at the Creative Exhibition 2017 held in June at the Cardiff School of Art and Design in Llandaff. The exhibition showcases the work of talented artists at GCSE, AS and A Level.

Sporting excellence

MILA Monaghan of year-11 is a member of the Royal Yachting Association UK Youth Squad – Laser Radial which recognises her potential to progress within the British Sailing Team, with the aim of winning selection for the UK Youth Squads or beyond into the Olympic Development programmes.

The selection establishes Mila's status as a UK squad sailor and we hope she will represent Great Britain at major international events in the forthcoming years.

Congratulations to Rhys Lewis of year-10 who is currently ranked as one of the leading junior sailors in the UK. Rhys has been selected to represent GB in the French 420 Championships, the European Open Championships in Athens, the Junior European Championships in Lake Garda and the World Championships in Fremantle, Australia.

These fantastic opportunities are the result of an immense amount of dedication and hard work, well done Rhys.

Welsh-wise quiz

IN July, years 8 and 9 pupils Claire Power, Amelia Brenan and Davis Hedgecoe, and three from year 9 – Oliver Evans, Anna Hughes, Charlie Jowett, attended the Geographical Association Welsh-Wise Quiz.

Both teams made an excellent effort and represented the school brilliantly. We are proud to say that the year-8 team came first and the year-9 team came second.

Marvellous Mulan

FINALLY, we'd like to say huge congratulations to all the pupils and staff involved in the highly successful junior production of Disney's Mulan. It was a spectacular show and audience feedback has been fantastic.

Performing arts at the Urdd.

Music students end the term on a high note

MUSICAL MINIS' Caitlyn Ellis recently passed grade 2 piano with merit and Benedict Griffin passed grade 4 recorder, also with merit.

Harrison Ollier passed grade 1 guitar with distinction scoring full marks on four out of six elements.

Katie Alsop took her piano prep test and received outstanding comments from the examiner. Following Jack Ollier's recent success at this year's South Glamorgan Festival for Young Musicians, he went on to win the festival prize for the most promising woodwind performance.

Several students successfully auditioned for various county orchestras with Simeon Whiffen gaining a place in the County Transitional Orchestra, Jemima Whiffen gaining a place in the County High Schools Orchestra and Jack Ollier gaining a place in the County Youth Orchestra.

Teacher Jo Weaving said: "I am extremely proud of all students' achievements this year. Everyone has worked hard.

"I hope they are all enjoying their summer holidays, and I'm looking forward to seeing everyone again in September."

HOUSES, STREETS AND ROADS IN CADOXTON 1885-95

THERE were 51 houses in Cadoxton Parish in 1881, together with farms including Colebrook Fawr and Fach (big and little), Old Mill, Weston, Biglis, Hatch and Bowers.

Several old 'highways' led into Cadoxton: Holton Farm going east via the Buttrills and Tynewydd, south of Witchell Wood to Cadoxton Common; from Pencoedtre Wood, south past Cadoxton Reservoir via Crossways and Cross Elms to the parish church; from St Andrews Major, south via Gilbert Cottage and Coldbrook to the church; from the Westra, Dinas Powis to Gilbert Cottage; Dinas Powis via moors to Weston; Holton passing south of Maes-y-cwm Wood to Weston.

The highways were narrow lanes with room for one vehicle and John Robinson, the engineer of the Docks Company, recalled how one day he came upon a horse and carriage with ladies aboard and had to lead his horse and trap backwards a long way, in order that they could pass.

Members of the Public Works committee in 1889 were J Robinson (chair), Edward Hughes, Oliver Jenkins, Charles Morgan, JC Meggitt and Dr O'Donnell, with JA Hughes, Dr George Neale and JC Pardoe, the clerk to the board, the medical officer of health and the surveyor respectively. One of their tasks was to ensure that builders adhered to the bye-laws and property owners carried out their responsibilities.

As some houses had already been erected before this committee was formed, they were playing 'catch-up' from the outset and new planning applications were flooding in at every meeting. Board members could not agree whether public roads should be 40 or 60 feet wide and this created problems for the Gas and Water Company, having to dig up and relay pipes, much as we have today.

The 1890 amendment to the Public Health Act of 1875 stipulated that 'private improvement works' in unfinished streets and roads, must be carried out by the board and paid out of the rates. They could then 'adopt' the streets and claim the costs from property owners, who were responsible for 'paving, curbing (sic) and channelling'.

Upgrading these bumpy, muddy lanes with the tools available 130 years ago would have been a challenge in calm and peaceful surroundings, but in the hustle and bustle of Barry in 1889, it must have been chaotic. To make a 12 feet wide highway suitable for the increased traffic often meant dealing with different landowners and then seeking tenders from builders to carry out the work. Sourcing the stone would take more time and the weather could turn them into impassable bogs for workers and delivery of materials by horse and cart.

When Thomas Jenkins died at New House in 1898 at the grand old age of 94, he was the oldest 'commoner' in the district, with rights to Cadoxton Common. This grand old man, who in 1861 was farming 13 acres of freehold land, could remember swimming in the sea as a child at Weston Square.

When the docks and railways were being planned in the early 1880s, the illustrious men involved in that enterprise such as TA Walker, John Wolfe Barry and David Davies of Llandinam, were frequent visitors to his home. His son Oliver was the clerk to the school board and with meetings held at the house, both of them were privy to what lay ahead.

Imagine then that 80-year-old Thomas made his way to the high point of the Common in 1885 for one last look at 'his village', before things changed for ever.

Below him to the north was the parish church, two early chapels, some cottages, several farms, the William the Fourth public house and over to the right was Coldbrook with Bitdown Wood to the left.

To the west were Slade and Witchell woods, then further down across open fields were Brooks, Newlands and Maes-y-Cwm woods. Coming back towards the common, he would have seen Court House where Rev John Hughes was living in 1881. Turning his gaze back to the south were the Old Mill, Weston Farm, Cadoxton River and the moors to the east as far as Sully and Hayes Farm, then no doubt with tears in his eyes, he bade farewell to his youth.

Ten years elapsed, with Oliver on the Local board and the School and Burial boards, so he was well aware of the great changes taking place.

Imagine once again that he wanted to take his father back to the common, to a scene he would not recognise and certainly could not have imagined.

He would have known about the few houses built just behind his home in Brock Street and as they left in their horse and carriage, they would have passed houses in Jenkin Street, Robin's Lane, Daniel, Beverley and Abingdon Streets and then more houses leading down the steep hill of Church Road.

Once on the common with its lofty panoramic view, looking north Thomas would have picked out homes in Treharne Road and Edwards Street, the latter available to rent at just 4s a week. Further ahead was the massive low level reservoir just below Pencoedtre Wood, built to supply water to the whole of Cadoxton and the lower parts of Barry Dock and east Barry.

Gazing across to the north east was the Cadoxton Brick Works with houses nearby in David Street, with the brook running behind. Next came his first sighting of the railway line as it carved its way north, leaving both Coldbrook Farms on the far side, with the first houses in Palmer Street just below. To the east were the Biglis Water Works and then looking south, near the goods station of the Taff Vale Railway, he would have caught sight of two large kilns at the Brick Works of Londoner Mr Jackson.

As the contractor of the deep water lock, on that site he was able to bake 250 tons in each kiln and by mid-July 1893, he sent the first 300 tons by rail to the docks.

Heading west from the Royal Hotel were houses along Barry Road with more in Fairford, Chesterfield, Glebe and Gilbert Streets on the north side and Lee Road, Llewellyn and Davies Streets and Commercial Road on the south side. Hannah Street had a few houses near Court Road, but the school had not yet been built.

It is worth remembering that this was still only 1895, just six years after the docks had been opened.

Catching his breath, Thomas would next have been drawn to look down from the common to the south and a scene for which he was not prepared. There before him were hundreds of houses in streets such as Main, Iddesleigh, Vere, Harvey, Hunter, Holmes, Forster, Weston, Llanover, Melrose, Oban, Pontypridd and Kenilworth, Courtenay and Old Mill Roads.

Oliver would most likely have reminded his father of The Old Wenvoe Inn, which had stood just below the common for 40 years, with first David Thompson and then his daughter Mrs Matthews in occupation. Now demolished and replaced by The Wenvoe Arms, its publican was H Chappell and was now a modern family and commercial hotel with stabling, a first class billiard room and serving cold luncheons daily.

Alongside the hotel, some houses had been built in Northcote Terrace and lower down in Jenner Street.

Beyond the railway station, there were more on the north side of Cardiff Road in John and Arthur Streets then opposite in Morlais, Spring, Gwenllian and Riverside. The architects were actually given permission to alter Gwenllian to Flora Street in 1892.

No doubt quite weary at that stage, he could have finished his visual journey by catching sight of a few houses in Beatrice and Rectory Roads off Weston Hill to the south west.

Had this event actually occurred, we can only surmise what Thomas' reaction would have been, but his son Oliver was prominent in the community and prospered from it, so it seems likely his response would have been favourable. Just before his death in 1898, he would have been told that his beloved common was to be taken over as a recreational area and named Victoria Park in celebration of the longevity of the Queen. It was interesting that six years earlier, board members had wanted to lay out the common as a public park. They had even been offered two gifts of 50 guineas from separate London sources, but the 'commoners' were unwilling.

It should be noted that most of the Jenkins family were buried in the parish church.

As Cadoxton was the largest district, some men resented improvements being made in east Barry and as early as October 1889, comment was made that people from Cadoxton could not agree about anything and that three Barry men were equal to four from Cadoxton.

An irate working man told the Barry Dock News that many wives found it preferable to pay the train fare and shop in Cardiff, rather than 'waddle about Cadoxton up to their knees in mud and sewage water, spoiling their best Sunday boots and petticoats'. He questioned what could 'lawyers, parsons, drapers, old farmers and a rich man or two' know about road-making.

Give him a dozen men with shovels, picks and wheelbarrows and the problem would be solved and if the local board did not sort out the roads, he was advocating non-payment of rates.

It should be remembered that this was a large hilly district with a great deal of water and human activity, but in those days as now, the public want immediate action.

In October 1889, the Local Board surveyor John Pardoe, announced the closure of the old road in preparation for the new one, from East Barry via Holton, Victoria Hotel, Glebeland, the Police Station, the south end of Courtenay Road to Weston Bridge.

The new Court Road from the Police Station through Brooks Farm as far as Cadoxton Court was also agreed and £2,713 was spent widening the old highway between Colebrook (sic) and the Royal.

Two years later, the committee agreed to maintain the old footpaths from Chesterfield Street and also Treharne Road to Merthyr Dovan; Pencoedtre to Stumpy Hall; Old Mill Cottage along the cliff to Hayes Farm and Sully; the 'highway' from Robbin's Lane to Merthyr Dovan and the Colcot. In December of that year, J Fido carried out improvements in Robbin's Lane for £418.13s.5d.

JC Meggitt applied to the county council to 'take over' the main road from Biglis via Weston Hill to Barry and they agreed to contribute towards its maintenance.

Travelling from Cadoxton to Port Road was over the original highway, as upgrading the road via Pencoedtre was still being discussed in 1905. In fact, as a young taxi driver in the early 1960's, we still had to travel along Barry Road and then Colcot Road to pick up the ladies for Bingo at the Empire.

The committee finally awarded the contract to Frank Small to upgrade Barry Road from the Royal to the bottom of Crogan Hill, but it would be four years before the work was finished.

To assist with the much-needed road improvements, in November 1890 a new steamroller costing £350, finally arrived at the offices of the local board.

A story told how the machine, while parked 'looking down' Vere Street and up Iddesleigh and Main Street, let out a piercing shriek at the deplorable condition of the roads where it would soon be expected to work, then shuddered backwards in sheer disgust. At the same time, the driver was heard to remark "what a horrible state of things in a civilised community".

Mount Pleasant Building Estate offered plots to let in August 1889, for the erection of villas, shops and cottages and then later sought tenders from builders for new streets and drainage.

Some of the first houses built in the district at Daniel Street and Commercial Road were being rented at 6s and 7s a week, with leases dated from 1885/6. Two houses in Iddesleigh Street sold for £320 and possibly surgeon W Lloyd Edward lived in one of them.

At the same time, Dr Milward of Cardiff had leased land on which Vere Street and side-streets were built and as a director of the Court Estate Building Company, he later sought tenders for roads on the upper portion of that estate.

It was reported that the old footpath along Court Road, through Jeremiah's Field and Gottzwaltz's Field via Brooks Farm was in a deplorable state and the local board was threatened with indictment for neglect of duty. Builder Daniel Evans for some reason had refused to allow the footpath to be 'metalled', yet even so he was still awarded the contract to widen High Street, Barry Dock Town for £42.19s 9d.

The King William the Fourth public house was in the High Street mentioned above, having been there before the docks development and in June 1890 it was fitted out with gas.

'Metalling' referred to the top dressing on the path/road, made up of any stone or gravel that had been mined or quarried. There was intense competition to tender for this material and local men John John, Jenkin Brock and David Love were often criticised for having insufficient supplies.

To illustrate their problems, the Alps Quarry at Wenvoe agreed to send 250 tons for metalling, by train to Barry Station and Alfred Elliott of Cardiff won the contract to supply stone for £8693.13.3d, being £1,800 cheaper than others.

In 1889 the Barry Stone & Lime Company opened extensive quarries at Maes-y-cwm, with kilns being built for lime and machinery for grinding mortar. They also had works at 'Barry Cliff' and George Thomas of Cardiff offered stone from his quarry on Barry Road, just up from the Royal Hotel.

Many syndicates and building companies were set up in the first few years to try and satisfy demand including: Cadoxton Estate syndicate, houses in Daniel Street; Witchill Estate Company, 12 houses in Gilbert Street; Cadoxton Cottage Company, 51 cottages in Church Road and the Commercial Road Building Club sought tenders to erect 30 cottages.

Local builders such as W Britton built six houses in Fairford Street for rent at 6s a week and there were some in Chesterfield Street at 6s.6d, with James Brock erecting two in Melrose Street.

In December 1895, an auction of 25 cottages in Commercial Road was held, all let at 4s.6d week. At that time a plasterer was paid £1.7s.3d a week and a joiner working for F Small earned £2.2s.

In October 1890, level crossings were planned for Iddesleigh, Vere and Quarella Streets, plus Kenilworth Road and two more from Main Street near the Royal Hotel.

EJ Ince built a house in 1895, for the engine driver at Biglis pumping station for £448.19s.

Recently we have seen flats and houses being built on the Waterfront, but they have not all been built at the same time and access to the site has been over well-made roads.

From 1889-1893, Cadoxton, Barry Dock and Barry experienced much more activity, with basic equipment and very poor access. The early residents must have wondered if their lives would ever settle down.

Apprentice winner Alana backing Welsh Government campaign

THE winner of BBC One's The Apprentice 2016, Alana Spencer is encouraging young people in the area to consider doing an apprenticeship.

Alana is backing the Welsh Government's summer campaign to support 1,000 brand new apprenticeship vacancies for people of all ages across Wales.

The vacancies, which will be posted on the Apprenticeship Matching Service on the Careers Wales website throughout the summer, will offer young people and adults the chance to secure an exciting career in a wide range of disciplines.

The job roles will all be apprenticeship opportunities with qualifications to match, with a particular focus on technical and professional skills. Some of the apprenticeships that are available now include journalist, associate scientist, quantity surveyor, ICT and computing, digital and marketing.

The Apprenticeship Programme in Wales is funded by the Welsh Government, with support from the European Social Fund.

Alana Spencer (25), is a supporter of the Welsh Government apprenticeship programme.

She said: "Young people leaving school are so lucky to have so many opportunities available to them.

"Apprenticeships have so many great benefits and allow young people to kick-start a career in a field they love, while also gaining some fantastic experience and industry relevant skills and qualifications that will help them to progress their career in the future.

"When I left school at 16, I was adamant that I didn't want to follow the traditional university route into a job. I also didn't know anything about apprenticeships at the time, so didn't even consider them as a possible avenue into becoming a chocolatier.

"When I was first starting out I had no-one to teach me, so I spent my days learning how to cook by practising and perfecting recipes at home.

"It was exceedingly hard work and really challenging at times, but thoroughly rewarding. However, there have been times when I didn't think I'd make it and would've been grateful for the opportunity to get some advice and support, as well as some practical, hands-on experience before venturing out alone.

"These days, apprenticeships are the perfect answer when it comes to wanting to launch a career in a field you're passionate about, while also obtaining all the tools you need to succeed in the future. They are a win-win for everyone."

Wales has developed a highly successful apprenticeship programme over recent years. Apprenticeships are increasingly becoming a viable alternative to traditional academic routes into employment, helping people of all ages gain on the job experience while studying for a nationally recognised qualification.

With results day around the corner, the Welsh Government is urging people in Wales to consider how an apprenticeship can be the first step of a worthwhile, skilled career path.

Minister for Skills and Science, Julie James, said: "Apprenticeships are a key investment for employers who can train their workforce in the specialist skills they need within their organisation.

"Apprenticeships play an important role in increasing the nation's overall skill set and driving economic growth, making sure that Wales remains competitive on the world stage.

"The Welsh Government is working in conjunction with training providers across Wales to highlight 1,000 apprenticeship vacancies in organisations from various sectors within small SMEs to larger global conglomerates over the summer period."

World War One, July 1917 – how one German torpedo claimed the lives of nine Barry men

It is easy to forget that 100 years ago, World War One was in its third year, and the casualties on both sides were mounting at a horrific rate.

The GEM is grateful to Paul Kemp of the Western Front Association and Barry at War for this sombre record of the Barry men who lost their lives in just one month, July, 1917.

JULY 31, 1917 saw the start of a major battle known officially as the Third Battle of Ypres but more commonly as Passchendaele.

It was to last until November 10, 1917. At the end of the first day significant advances had been made, the 38th (Welsh) Division did particularly well and was singled out for praise by Field Marshal Haig.

Unfortunately, heavy rain then fell in torrents, the worst weather in Belgium for many years turned the battlefield into a muddy quagmire, which was to be the most memorable feature of the battlefield, with attacking troops struggling to make progress in the mud.

Second Engineer David Oliver Davies of the SS Southina, Mercantile Marine, died on July 7 as a result of an attack by an enemy submarine. Aged 37, he was the son of Samuel and Hannah Davies; husband of Margaret Mary Davies (nee Roberts), of 8, Welford Street, Barry. He was born at Maesteg.

On July 7 the SS Southina, on a voyage from Cardiff to Oran with a cargo of coal and Government stores, was sunk by the German submarine UC-67 (Karl Neumann) six miles WNW of Cap Sigli, Algeria. One person was lost.

Private George Henry Northcott of 901st Mechanical Transport, Army Service Corps died of heart disease on July 7; he is buried in Basra War Cemetery, Iraq. Aged 27, the son of William and Elizabeth Jane Northcott of Melrose, Sully and husband of Mary Elizabeth Northcott. He was educated in Dinas Powys County School; he was a motor mechanic.

He enlisted in the Army Service Corps on March 15, 1916 and served with the Indian Expeditionary Force in Mesopotamia from March 2, 1917.

Mess room steward Sidney John Dench of the SS Calliope, Mercantile Marine died on July 12 as a result of an attack by an enemy submarine. Aged 15, he was the son of Mrs Florence Kate Smith of 30, Holme Street, Cadoxton, Barry. He was born at Twickenham.

On July 12 SS Calliope, on voyage from Seville to Newport with a cargo of iron ore, was torpedoed and sunk by German U-boat U-155 (Kapitänleutnant Karl Meusel) 150 miles north of Madeira. All 27 crew died.

Sapper Sydney George John of the 557th Army Troops Coy, Royal Engineers died of wounds on July 11. He was born and enlisted in Barry and went to France March 8, 1915. He is buried in Coxyde Military Cemetery, Belgium.

Carpenter William Eakon of the SS Mariston, Mercantile Marine died on July 15 as a result of an attack by an enemy submarine. Aged 52, he was the husband of Ellen Eakon (nee Saunders), of 3, Lee Road, Cadoxton. He was born at Stettin.

On July 15 SS Mariston, a defensively armed British Merchant steamer was on a voyage from Almeria to the Clyde, Glasgow, with a cargo of copper ore when 82 miles West of the Fastnet, Ireland she was torpedoed without warning and sunk by German submarine U-45 (Erich Sittenfeld); 28 lives were lost including the master.

On July 16, SS Ribston was en route from Melilla to the Clyde with a cargo of iron ore when she was torpedoed by German submarine U-45 and sunk 85 miles west from the Fastnet rock. The crew of 25 were all lost including the master and nine Barry merchant seamen.

Able Seaman William Jenkin Bartlett, aged 20, son of Rachel Bartlett of 4 Clive Road, Barry Island; carpenter Zanis Constantine Coutsoudis, aged 58, son of the late Constantine and Stamaton Coutsoudis; husband of Assimio Coutsoudis of 8, Travis Street, Barry. Born in Chile; sailor George Mansel Durbin, aged 18, son of William Henry and Kathleen Ellen Durbin of 13 Bassett Street, Barry Dock; fireman Benjamin Charles Evans, aged 23, son of David and Elizabeth Evans of 101, Merthyr Street, Barry; fireman Joseph Kays, aged 32, son of W Henry and Emma Kays; husband of Beatrice Kays (nee Chick) of 5, Palmerston Road, Cadoxton. Born at Bedminster, Bristol.

Sailor George Henry Lixton, aged 18, son of John and Mary Ann Lixton (nee Smith), of 15, Commercial Road, Barry Dock; born at Newport, Mon.

Able Seaman George Henry Taylor, aged 21, son of George and Lucy Ann Taylor (nee Baker) of 4, Gilbert Street, Cadoxton, Barry; fireman John Owen Charles Vincent, aged 28, son of George and Elizabeth Vincent; husband of Minnie Evelina Vincent (nee Taylor) of 40, Tydvil Street, Barry Dock. Born at Cardiff.

Fireman Charles Stanley Wilson, aged 24, son of John and Emily Wilson; husband of Annie May Wilson (nee Thomas), of 60, Graving Dock Street, Barry Dock; born at Cardiff.

Second Lieutenant Ivor Llewellyn Dadds, Inland Water Transport, Royal Engineers died on July 17; he is buried in Basra War Cemetery, Iraq. Aged 30, he was the son of Samuel Llewellyn Dadds and Elizabeth Dadds of 'Brynhyfryd,' Miskin Street, Barry.

Private William T Hookings, caterpillar driver, Base Mechanical Transport Depot, Army Service Corps, died through the effects of excessive heat in Mesopotamia on July 23 and was buried in Kut War Cemetery, Iraq.

He was the son of Mr and Mrs TH Hookings, 5 Brickyard Terrace, Cadoxton. He had been in the Army for 18 months, and had been in the east for the last 12 months. He was formerly a locomotive fireman on the Barry Railway.

He was 26 years of age, educated at Cadoxton Council School, and left a wife – Florence Elizabeth – and two children, having lived at Church Road, Cadoxton.

Ship's cook Thomas York of the SS Ludgate, Mercantile Marine died on July 26 as a result of an attack by an enemy submarine. Aged 51, he was the husband of Eleanor York (nee Murphy), of 26 Fryatt Street, Barry. He was born at York.

On July 26 SS Ludgate, on a voyage from Huelva to Garston with a cargo of iron ore, was sunk by a mine from the German submarine UC-51 (Hans Galster), two miles south from Galley Head; 24 crew were lost.

Gunner Thomas Sidney Bryant of 'Y' Trench Mortar Battery, Royal Field Artillery, 38th (Welsh) Division was killed in action on July 28. Aged 19, he was buried in Bard Cottage Cemetery, Belgium. The Barry Dock News reported: 'ONE OF THE VERY BEST.' – O.C. KILLED SEVEN DAYS AFTER RETURNING FROM LEAVE.'

In a letter to Mr and Mrs James Bryant, 131 Dock View Road, Barry Docks, the Commanding Officer, Y Battery, TMB, 38th Division, Royal Field Artillery, informed them of the death in action of their son, Tom S Bryant.

In the communication, the OC said: 'Your son was killed by a German shell on July 28th. It is a very great blow to me, as he was my best gunner. He died a soldier's death, by his gun, but we cannot afford to lose good men, and he was one of the very best. There has been some hot fighting here lately, and he did splendidly.'

Gunner Bryant was home on leave on July 10, returned to France on the 19th and was killed on the 28th. He joined the Army when he was 17, and spent his 19th birthday in the trenches.

He was formerly employed in the Barry Railway engine sheds. An old pupil of Hannah Street Council School, he played for the school football team, and captained Hannah Street when they won the Schools' Football Shield. His mother was a lineal descendant of Sir Henry Matthews, who fought in the Battle of St Fagan's on the side of the Royalists.

Gunner Percival Christmas Thomas of 'B' Battery, 122nd Brigade, Royal Field Artillery died of wounds on July 29. He is buried in Canada Farm Cemetery, the son of Caroline Thomas; he lived and enlisted in Barry.

Second Lieutenant John Humphrey England of the 14th Bn, Welsh Regiment was killed in action on July 31. He has no known grave and is commemorated on the Menin Gate Memorial to The Missing, Ypres, Belgium. He had been Mentioned in Despatches.

The Barry Dock News reported: 'LIEUTENANT KILLED IN THE MEMORABLE PUSH. Lieutenant Jack England, who was killed whilst leading his men in the push on July 31 was the only son of Mr and Mrs JH England of Llanishen, and grandson of Mr J Jewel Williams, of Glanhafren, Barry.

He was educated at Cardiff High School and King's College, Taunton, afterwards entering the service of Messrs Spillers and Bakers. Immediately war broke out he joined the Welsh Cyclists, and assisted for nearly 12 months in guarding the North-East Coast, he obtained his commission in August 1915, and went to the front a year later with the Welsh Regiment.

Accounts to hand show that he acquitted himself with great vigour and bravery. He will be a great loss,' writes the colonel. He was a fine, brave boy, and always did his work well. Your boy's company had fought their way to the final objective before he was killed.'

Private Leslie Richard Thomas, 'A' Company,14th Bn, Welsh Regiment was killed in action on July 31. Aged 19, the son of William and Catherine Mary Thomas of 36 Dyfan Road, Witchill Estate, Cadoxton, he has no known grave and is commemorated on the Menin Gate Memorial to the Missing, Ypres, Belgium.

Second Lieutenant Norman McCallum of the 11th Bn Argyll and Sutherland Highlanders was killed in action on July 31. Mr James A McCallum, Windsor Road, Barry was informed of the death in action of his son, Second Lieutenant Norman McCallum, Argyll and Sutherland Highlanders. He was 22 years of age, and had enlisted in September, 1914.

He had been in France since June 1915, and was severely wounded in the neck at the battle of Loos. Lieut McCallum was a keen sportsman and footballer, and a staunch supporter of the Barry Rowing Club. Educated at Barry County School. A brother, Graydon McCallum, of the Royal Engineers, was training for commission.

Private Frank Wood of the 13th Bn, Gloucestershire Regiment was killed in action on July 31. Born in Barry Dock, he enlisted in Birmingham and was married to Kate Wood with one child. He is buried in Duhallow ADS Cemetery, Belgium.

Private Edward Theophilus Christie of the 2nd Bn, West Yorkshire Regiment was killed in action on July 31. Born in Barry, he lived and enlisted in Hull, and was the son of Sarah A Christie. He has no known grave and is commemorated on the Menin Gate Memorial to The Missing, Ypres, Belgium.

They shall grow not old, as we that are left grow old;
Age shall not weary them, nor the years condemn.
At the going down of the sun and in the morning
We will remember them.

Can we help you?

What did your relatives do in the First World War?

Do you have a family member who served in the Armed Forces - Army, Navy or Air Force?

Whether he or she died or survived, we may be able to help you find out more about them.

Drop into the Barry War Museum and speak to one of our dedicated team of volunteers (we are open Wednesdays 2pm to 4pm).

Please bring any information you already have – photos, letters or other items such as medals, documents etc.

We will advise and assist you to find out what may be available.

Please note that the museum will be open for the next five weekends, beginning Saturday, July 29. Sunday, August 6 will hopefully see the Return of the Red Arrows to Barry Island and Saturday, August 12 will be the museum's big open day… more details on our website.

Atal Y Fro benefit from the Soroptimists' 50th challenge

THE ladies of Atal Y Fro, the women's refuge, were the recipients of this month's SI Barry and District's 50th challenge.

For the 50th anniversary of the club, members collected personal hygiene items to donate to women who are victims of domestic violence.

Lana Gould from Atal Y Fro was very appreciative of the Soroptimists' support and said that the items would be most useful for those seeking emergency temporary accommodation.

SI Barry and District has for many years helped by providing bedding, household items and washbags to those in the refuge. Campaigning against domestic violence has been a focus area of Soroptimist Internationa', hence the close links between the club and Atal Y Fro in Barry.

To find out more about the club, visit www.sigbi.org/barry-and-district.

Local church in competition to find Wales' favourite religious building

The interior of St Illtud's Church at Llantwit Major.

THE ancient church of St Illtud's, Llantwit Major, has been entered in a national competition to find the most popular sacred site or building in Wales.

The National Churches Trust has selected 50 possibilities, ranging from tiny rural churches like Mwnt on Cardigan Bay to the great cathedrals such as St David's, and from remote chapels like Capel Newydd at Nanhoren to the great chapels of the industrial era like Tabernacle, Llanelli.

Some of the buildings revel in great architecture, others in a long history of worship, but all are important in the history of Wales.

St Illtud's Church proudly stands on one of the earliest Christian sites in Britain, with a Celtic Christian community being founded by St Illtud about the year 500. Here was Britain's earliest centre of learning, with a school and missionary centre, as well as the monastery.

In the recently rebuilt Galilee Chapel is an important collection of Celtic Christian stones, particularly the beautiful Houelt Cross. The original parish church, built after 1100, is now the West Church.

The East Church was added in the 13th century, and contains many items of interest, including the unique Jesse niche, wall paintings and medieval and Tudor effigies.

St Illtud's today is a lively and active parish church, attracting visitors from all over the world, being drawn by its history and atmosphere of prayer and worship.

The winning church will receive a special trophy and £500.

To see all the sites entered into the competition, go to www.sacredwales.org.uk. Voting is easy – find the photograph and click on to it.

Vale kitchen assistant Gareth wins an award

Gareth and his apple pie.

A VALE of Glamorgan Council kitchen assistant showed off his award–winning culinary skills at a recent national competition.

Gareth Humphreys, who works at St Cyres Comprehensive School in Penarth, took part in the 2017 Finishing Touches competition with the National Lead Association for Catering in Education, earlier this month.

On July 6 Gareth won the silver award for his biscuit entry as well as best in class. His modern take on an apple pie, complete with a custard filling and popping candy on the top, won the bronze prize.

It was only last October that he won at the regional Welsh Lead Association for Catering in Education competition (LACA) for his biscuit entry.

Gareth Humphreys, 64, who has worked as a kitchen assistant for two years, said:

"It was a very good day but I didn't know what the standard would be at a national competition. It would be great to encourage other members of staff in others schools, who enjoy baking, to take part in competitions like these. Having the backing of the catering team was fantastic.

"I spent most weekends baking in the lead-up to the competition, and people don't realise how much of your time it takes. My 11-year-old grandson suggested putting popping candy on the pie, and I'm glad I did."

Gareth also received a trophy and a mug from the catering team, who were more than happy to offer their support.

Mary Hesford, who works with Strategy, Community Learning and Resources at The Vale of Glamorgan Council, said: "We are very proud of Gareth's success and have put a newsletter to all our staff to encourage them to enter any future competitions and also to share in his success.

"We had tasting sessions in the school and staff and pupils enjoyed this and were very willing to give their compliments and suggestions. Gareth loves to bake and he has a real feel for it."

Isle of Fire lights up the sky over Barry Island

A SPECTACULAR show saw the sky light up at Barry Island – as the popular Isle of Fire festival returned for its fourth year.

On Saturday, 5,000 people gathered on opening night in anticipation of what this year's two-day event had in store.

With giant fire sculptures, a ten-foot tall lobster, and a performance from the glow in the dark band, Spark! the island was overflowing with bright colours and sounds.

A weekend of New Orleans jazz was provided by musicians Wonderbrass, Mr Wilson's second lining, and a few fire singers were performing too.

A lantern parade was led by Barry Island Primary School pupils, closely followed by the famous fire-breathing dragon on a ship sailed by angry Vikings.

Coun Bob Penrose, Vale of Glamorgan Council cabinet member for learning and culture, said: "The council has overseen the extensive regeneration of Barry Island Promenade in recent years, and events like this help showcase what a wonderful location it is.

"I'm thrilled so many turned out to sample The Isle of Fire, which attracted people from far and wide to the Vale. It is just one in a series of events set to take place on the Island over the coming weeks and we believe all those in the Barry Island Weekenders programme will prove just as appealing and successful."

The Isle of Fire was the first of several Barry Island Weekenders lined up for summer 2017.

Live bands and music artists will take over the island's promenade at this year's Street Music Weekender, from July 29 – 30.

For more information on events across the Vale this summer, visit www.visitthevale.com/en/Events/Events.aspx

Penarth Ramblers go on two evening strolls

AFTER some downpours in the Barry area, for the 10 walkers and Bella the dog who joined Joy from Penarth and District Ramblers at St Mary's Church in Wenvoe for the start of an evening ramble, everywhere was bone dry and remained that way.

Setting off under the A4050 to take advantage of stiles that had recently been cleared by the group, then heading southwards beside the busy main road a deviation through a gateway led them into fields to the rear of Vishwell Farm for the journey to St Andrews Road.

After heading across a field of long grass, several more stiles led onto the driveway of Garn and crossing the busy A4050, a pretty pathway through a wood led them to Burdonshill lane with its views across the golf course.

Reaching Wenvoe Wood and heading down past Poundfield Farm into Pound Lane before descending past the library onto Old Port Road, a short trek across the footbridge over the main road brought them along Station Road East and back playing fields, where a narrow footpath adjacent to houses led back to the start.

Country park

Jan and John played host to a group of 14 walkers on an evening ramble, taking in Porthkerry Country Park. Leaving the car park at the Travelodge on Port Road to walk through a very short shower of rain on the journey down through Cwm Ciddy Lane, brought them into Porthkerry Park, purchased by the council in 1929 from the Romilly family estate.

Following a narrow footpath beside the main Vale of Glamorgan railway line uphill and circumnavigating the edge of a field of ripe barley, several kissing gates led them into the next barley field and the reward of grand views towards Cardiff Airport and out over the Bristol Channel.

After descending through a field and crossing the Whitelands Brook, a footbridge over the Bullhouse Brook led past the Old Rectory and into a field overlooking the Porthkerry viaduct, before a sunken path led steeply uphill to Porthkerry village.

Passing through the lych gate of St Curig's Church dedicated to the 6th century saint, they continued downhill through woodland. Crossing the pitch and putt course, steps led them up into Knockmandown Wood, past Nightingale Cottage and into the Millwood to view the remains of the old sawmill, before heading back to their start and a quick drink in the pub as a thank you for the use of their car park.

On August 3, meet at 6.30pm in Rhoose Railway Station car park, for a 3-mile easy walk taking in Rhoose Point and quarries; contact Joy on 01446 737131.

On August 5, meet at 8.30am at Cogan Leisure Centre for a 12-mile hard walk to Mynydd y Glog from Garwnant; contact Barrie on 029 2053 0753.

On August 6, meet at 9am at Cogan for a 10-mile moderate walk in the Carmarthen area; contact Robin on 029 2051 4051.

On August 10, meet at 6pm at the Gorsedd Stones rear of Romilly Park, Barry for a 4-mile easy/mod walk taking in Cold Knap, Barry Island and the Quays; contact Joy on 01446 737131.

Choir excel themselves at Bath Abbey

ON the weekend of July 22-23, the parish choir of All Saints,' Barry, sang as the choir in residence at Bath Abbey, while the regular Abbey choristers started their summer holiday.

It is fair to say that they excelled themselves and really shone a beacon light representing the Church of All Saints and the town of Barry in general.

They sang exceptionally well at evensong on the Saturday night and then at the Choral Eucharist and Evensong on the Sunday, to a packed Abbey of regular worshippers, tourists and a coach load of supporters who travelled up by coach on the Sunday.

Spirits were certainly not dampened by the heavy rain, as music was performed by Stanford, Haydn and contemporary composer David Ogden, amongst others.

It was a huge privilege for organist and choirmaster, James Bull, to direct the choir on their first official cathedral visit away from home territory.

The choir received positive comments from the clergy, members of congregation and professional musicians, as their sound reverberated around the Abbey walls.

When the choir return from their summer break, they will be working hard on preparing for their next cathedral visit in October, where they will sing in the Chapel of St George's, Windsor Castle.

The choir is always looking for new choristers – for further information, email music@allsaintsbarry.org.uk.

Barry Beavers unveil commemorative book

BARRY Beavers Disabled Swimming Club has unveiled a commemorative book – to celebrate the club's history.

The club, which trains in Barry Leisure Centre, has been active for over three decades, with hundreds of members past and present.

The current membership of 80 gathered in the dance hall in the leisure centre recently for speeches from the chair of the club, Christopher Economides, secretary Pat Finch, book coordinator Angela Price and a few of the founding members. Each member and friends of the club received a copy of the book.

Also attending the ceremony was Alun Cairns MP, who said: "It was an honour to speak at this wonderfully heart-warming event, because it is clear to see the positive impact the club has had on its members over the decades.

"I have seen this club battle through the most difficult of times, yet their perseverance has always helped them to overcome the difficulties facing them.

"I had a lump in my throat listening to the members speak of how grateful they are for all that Barry Beavers has helped them to achieve. This club is truly special!"

The Barry Beavers are now looking forward to their annual Party In the Park, which will take place on Sunday, August 6 at Porthkerry Park.

MV Balmoral is back on her home beat...

ALL ABOARD! Passengers at Porthcawl.

AFTER successful sailing periods in the Scottish western isles and on the north Wales coast, MV Balmoral is back on the Bristol Channel beat for her popular summer season.

From July 26 to September 4, she is sailing on 39 separate days all around the area.

Last flagship of the famous P&A Campbell White Funnel Fleet, she will sail from her main departure point at Penarth's historic Victorian Pier, on 27 days. There will also be many sailings from Porthcawl, Swansea and Briton Ferry.

Balmoral proudly continues the great heritage of over 150 years of coastal pleasure steamers around the coast of Wales.

Paul Doubler, spokesman for the Balmoral, said: "We look forward very much to returning to our home waters of the Bristol Channel, for what we hope will be a very busy and successful time for the ship.

"Balmoral was the UK Historic Fleets flagship of the Year 2016, and is Britain's most travelled coastal excursion ship."

Following her main summer season, Balmoral will spend 14 days in September on the north Wales coastline doing many exciting cruises from Llandudno, Menai Bridge, and other places sailing to Liverpool, around the Isle of Anglesey which is a cruise unique to Balmoral.

Then she will go to Glasgow and the Clyde for a week, before ending her season back home again on the Bristol Channel between September 28 and October 2.

Her summer holiday timetable is packed full of popular trips and cruises, there is something for everyone; from short couple of hour trips, to half days, and full long day voyages of exploration, excitement and fun.

To book your tickets go to the White Funnel website at www.whitefunnel.co.uk or telephone 0117 325 6200 for further information.

Tickets can also be bought on board on the day from the purser – subject to availability.

HOPE PROJECT IS MAKING HEADWAY AT BRYN HAFREN!

AN arty collaboration between Bryn Hafren pupils, Elevate and Headway Cardiff took off with flying colours in the last week of term at Bryn Hafren Comprehensive School in Barry.

The Hope Project was organised by Elevate, a Big Lottery-funded coaching and mentoring charity working in secondary schools in the Vale of Glamorgan and Headway Cardiff, who are a charity that provide services to people with acquired brain injuries, and their families and carers.

Bryn Hafren pupils and Headway service-users and staff all volunteered and showed real commitment and enthusiasm. In the project, they created art pieces that reflected how they had overcome their particular struggles and challenges, and then presented it to each other, with a final piece of art they did all together.

Clients of Headway Cardiff told of how they had to overcome difficulties of expressing the emotional issues of their personal experience, but also how this had helped them to reflect. Chris Jones, a Headways client said that the project had helped him to "open up to people, because everyone has problems, just talking will help".

The two groups met on July 18 at Bryn Hafren Comprehensive School, after spending months committed to producing their artwork.

Initial nerves soon gave way to a sense of all-round rapport as people opened courageously about what their artistic creations meant to them, and their journey of hope, despite difficulties.

The themes that came across from all were the courage, determination and hope, the vital role the charities had provided played in enabling them to not only survive periods of darkness and loss, but also to encounter unexpected joy and achievement in their lives. Sharing personal stories brought a sense of hope to the group and fostered a sense of compassion and respect for one another.

Nathan, a Headway service-user, said: "The views of younger children really opened my eyes. This is amazing. I feel honoured that I have been part of it." Georgia, a Bryn Hafren pupil, spoke about how sharing and hearing the personal stories had made her realise she needed to feel proud: "I learned that it's good to challenge adversity and to hold my head up proud about who I am."

Brenda, a Headways service user, mentioned that it was "so important to work with young people and to close ages gaps and overcome prejudices". The groups finished the day with a collaborative art piece where they all shared their new insights gained from their day together.

One insight read: "Acceptance, understanding of other people, I see a new perspective." The new piece certainly conveyed the sense of hope that had come from the overall process.

At the end of the day, the feeling was that everybody wanted to stay in touch and work together on future projects, and each group expressed a better understanding of each other.

Rhian, a support worker for Headway, said: "Absolutely inspirational. More projects like this would vastly improve society, as it creates unilateral understanding and acceptance of each other."

The Hope Project was put forward by Elevate, which works with secondary school pupils by providing one-to-one support through trained volunteers and staff. We at Elevate believe everyone is aspirational, and at times gets stuck moving forward, but with the right support they can be encouraged to take the next steps to overcome the barriers they face.

Elevate and Headway are always looking for volunteers to support their work. Find out more at www.headway.cardiff and at www.elevate.community , about how you can become involved. Call 01446 400794.

Thank you

I would like to thank the staff at Waitrose. I fell, not in supermarket, but was buying plasters for my wound. When the assistant saw it she immediately called a member of staff to clean and dress the wound. She even checked in my shopping at no charge. They were all extremely kind and I want to thank them all for their kindness. They were very caring.

Vital win for the Barry Wanderers

THE weather was kind to Barry Wanderers first team as the game at Machen went ahead, while the home game fell foul to the weather.

Machen were the only team below the Wanderers at the start of play and it was almost a 'must win' game with a strong team making the trip, while Machen were missing a few.

The first surprise for many was the game going ahead and the second was that James Hassett won the toss and promptly put Machen in.

The rain was due to come in at 4pm so that meant time was also against there being a result.

Despite a dropped catch from the second ball of the innings, a great start was had by Barry as Machen were 8 for 3, with Rhodri Jones taking a safe catch in the deep and Kunal Mhadgut taking a wonderful catch to remove the Machen captain, Caddy, at short extra cover.

Despite a recovery and three useful knocks in the 20s from three Machen batsmen, they never really got going and were all out for 126.

Hassett moved himself to forward short leg to take a catch, and Aled Hughes took a diving catch at slip to remove the very dangerous Fussell.

In all, they took eight catches including one from stand-in keeper, George Allen, who performed admirably in Matt Anderson`s absence.

Tea was not ready so there were 10 overs in the Wanderers' reply before the break.

It was clear that it wasn't an easy wicket to bat on and the slow outfield meant that full value was not always granted to shots along the ground.

Still, a target of 127 was one that should be in reach and the weather now was estimated to come in at 5 o clock.

However, George Allen fell for a duck with the score on seven to a good ball and a send-off from the bowler. He then realised his bat was broken. If he had hit the ball he may have found out earlier.

The tea break was taken after 10 overs with the score on 36 for 1 but the break did for Neil Blundell, who was bowled after hitting the ball on to his pads and rolling back to remove the bails.

There was a slight wobble as both Hornby and Hassett, who had reached 16 and 14 respectively both fell lbw with the score on 57.

The very talented but short of runs on a Saturday pair, Aled Hughes and Kunal Mhadgut then took the game away from Machen with a partnership of 70 where both players looked back to their best.

It still wasn't easy out in the middle but both played some quality shots and reached the total with 16 overs to spare as the clouds gathered – just before the heavens opened.

Kunal finished with 31 to his name and Hughes 29 as the full 20 points was gathered.

This leaves Machen adrift somewhat at the bottom of Division Three of the south-east Wales cricket league while the Wanderers elevated themselves out of the relegation zone but it is very tight with Creigiau on 108, Monkswood a point more and the Wanderers on 117.

Assuming Machen go down it seems the other relegation spot will be filled with one of these three teams.

There are still 100 points to play for and the weather could have a say but the Wanderers will be happy with a clinical performance and hope to be equally as clinical against a strong Vale team on Saturday.

The seconds are away at Vale and the Sunday team are yet to have a fixture confirmed but hope to this week.

MILLIE GETS GB CALL-UP

Congratulations to Millie Wiggins of Rhoose Lifeguard Club on being selected for the Great Britain Youth Surf Lifesaving Team.

Millie secured one of only six places in the under-18s team despite being only 15 years old on the day of selection, and is one of only two athletes from Wales in the youth team.

She will now compete for Great Britain in September at the European Surf Lifesaving Championships in Ostend, Belgium.

Club captain Simon Parker said "Millie joins a long line of Rhoose club members who have represented GB at European and World championships, but she is probably the youngest to have gained international selection and this is an outstanding achievement."

Steve Baker, Rhoose junior squad coach, stated: "We are extremely proud of Millie. She set herself a goal and through hard work and determination she has achieved it.

"It has been a pleasure to be one of the many coaches on her journey to get where she is today."

The club wishes Millie good luck in September and will looks forward to following her progress at the European Championships.

Farmers enjoy a golfing day out!

THE monthly meeting of the Glamorgan Farmers' Golf Society was held last Thursday at St Mellons Golf Club attended by 33 competitors with excellent prizes supplied by the day's generous sponsors, Cowbridge-based Maesglas Veterinary Group.

This annual four-ball better-ball competition was keenly contested with just a few points separating the leading groups.

At the close of play Mark Rees, partnered with David Williams, were declared the overall winners with a final score of 40 stableford points to collect the Maesglas Veterinary Group Shied.

In second place with 38 points was Geraint Davies and Julian Kelly followed by John Thomas and Gwyn Thomas, who scored 37 points.

In the section for visitors the sponsor's guests Neil Boobyer and Lyn Davies, with a final score of 33 points, took the honours just ahead of Geoff Smith and Geoff Moore.

Nearest the pin on the Watts & Morgan sponsored par-3 holes were John Caines (two), Gareth Perkins, Mike Lee and Brian Jones.

Lynn Davies hit the longest drive on the closing hole to collect the Bear Hotel, Cowbridge-sponsored prize.

Keith James correctly guessed 19 balls would fail to make the journey home that also raised £80 for the Alzeimers Society.

A notable absentee at St Mellons was Aubrey Bowen, the oldest member of the society. Aubrey was at home celebrating his 85th birthday and no doubt ignoring advice from 'Mrs B' and close family that he should perhaps consider playing less than four rounds a week!

The society's next meeting is scheduled for Thursday, August 31 at Creigiau Golf Club and will be kindly sponsored by Anthony Brown & Co, Estate Agents of Llantwit Major.

Rain stops play for Centurions

SULLY Centurions hosted Vale CC last Saturday on a day that was dominated by the weather.

After losing Santosh Singh in the first over, Centurions' second wicket pair of David Goodway and Gethin Hicks pulled the game round in style.

Hicks was eventually out for 30 but Goodway went on to hit a very good 101 not out in the total of 198 for 4 at the end of the 45 overs.

In reply, Vale had reached 142 for 6 when the rain, which had been a problem all afternoon, finally put paid to the match. It was abandoned with 12 overs remaining.

Sully Centurions 198-4, Vale CC 142-6.

The second XI travelled up the A48 to play Vale second XI and beat the weather as well as the opposition to get their season back on track.

The conditions dictated that after winning the toss skipper Dave Sylvester put the hosts in to bat.

This proved to be a good decision as Vale were very soon in trouble with the scoreboard showing 18 for 3. But Merry (28) and Kelland (45) shared a fourth wicket partnership of 89 to give the hosts some hope.

However, this was followed by a devastating collapse, as the last six wickets fell for only 12 runs – leaving the score on 119 all out.

For Centurions Iwan Thomas (3 for 10 off 5 overs) and Jason Hicks (3 for 30 from 8) did most of the damage.

In reply, Jason Hicks followed his good bowling form with a well-made 43 before being stumped off the bowling of Merry.

With the middle order all chipping in with decent scores, the target was reached for the loss of five wickets in the 34th over.

Vale CC seconds 119 all out, Sully Centurions seconds 120-5.

This Saturday the first XI are away against Pontymister & Cross Keys, with the seconds at Burnham Avenue against Pontymister & Cross Keys second XI.

On Sunday the seconds will once again attempt to play the rearranged fixture at Machen.

All players are asked to contact Dave Sylvester or Jake Griffett with their availability.

Great win for Belle Vue

BELLE VUE had a great win over Sully Sports, 68-55, 12 points to two points, on Wednesday, July 26.

With only 13 men, Belle Vue pulled off an amazing win against a full Sully side with three rinks winning and the other losing on the last end.

Rink one was the only losing rink, going down on the last end 16-13 with only three men. Lead was captain Frank Keen, No 3 was John Whitfield and skip was Dave Miller, who kept in the game all the way through.

Rink two had only three men as well, but won 17-13. Lead was Dave Bradley, No 3 was Richard Brant and skip was Trevor Ford.

Rink three was the only rink to have a full team, but they also were outstanding. Lead was Dave Rappitt, No 2 was Gordon Ford, who played his very best. No 3 was new coach Paul Paterson and the skip was Les Aubrey.

Rink four also played three men, with lead Paul Booth, No 3 John Allen and skip Barrie Bagwell, who, with his skilful bowling, made the final score in their rink 21-15.

A big thank you to Paul Booth for the excellent meal and thanks to Barrie Bagwell and Dave for running the bar and washing up!

Good month for Rhoose ladies

RESULTS for Rhoose Bowls Club's ladies section continue with ongoing success.

July was once again a very successful month with no losses, and the results are as follows.

A home match against Sopia Gardens - rink 1 S Dance, M Thomas, D Gardner, J Hopkins 18 shots, Sophia Gardens 17 shots; rink 2. K Mortimer Brown, R Oxley Green, K Bladen, P Jupp 20 shots, Sophia Gardens 16 shots – an overall win by five shots.

The next match was away to Rhiwbina. On a rather heavy green the ladies managed to secure an overall win.

Rink 1 S Dance, S Slee, K Bladen, D Gardner 10 shots, Rhiwbina 12 shots; rink 2, C Barns, K Mortimer Brown, P Jupp. A Shears 19 shots, Rhiwbina 12 shots – once again an overall win by five shots.

The home match against Llanbradach was the final match in July with an outstanding win for Rhoose ladies.

Rink 1 J Green, Jo Hopkins, R Oxley Green, R Craig 32 shots, Llanbradach 2 shots; rink 2 K Bladen, B Harry, P Jupp. D Gardner 8 shots, Llanbradach 26 – overall win by 12 shots.

The ladies on rink two had two very young ladies against them, one being only 12 years old.

It was wonderful to see such young girls taking up this wonderful game of bowls, we wish more youngsters would give it a try.

On Sunday, July 30, the club held ther annual open pairs competition.

The mixed weather caused a few problems but did not dampen the spirits of those taking part.

The competition was on a round robin format and the eventual finalists were Paul Williams and Hugh Hupp against Phil Watts and Brian Shears.

Phil and Brian made a great start and seemed to be unbeatable. However, Paul and Hugh rallied to make a strong comback.

This was not to last as Phil and Brian once again dug deep to come out the winners.

Many congratulations to them.

Thanks must go to Brian Shears for the wonderful organisaton of the day, proving to be a great success.

Barry RFC ready for new season

THE Barry RFC lottery numbers for last week were 02, 10, 12 and 18, the combination again failing to be matched.

This week's jackpot increases to £5,675.

With the main season just four weeks away Barry play the first of two pre-season friendlies on Saturday, August 5, when they entertain Treharris from Division 3 East Central, who narrowly missed out on promotion last season and who will bring stiff opposition to the Reservoir Field with the kick off at 2.30pm.

The following Saturday Barry play host to Lydney, who have, for the past two seasons, provided strong opposition and a friendly welcome to their club, last year being particularly eventful; again the kick off is at 2.30pm

The main season kicks off on Saturday, September 2 when Barry travel to newly-promoted Llantwit Fardre – a players and supporters coach will leave the club at 12.30pm.

Barry Athletic Club awarded donation

The councillors with club chairman, Dave Weston and club president, Alan Oliver.

DURING the recent grant presentation event held recently by Barry Town Council, Barry Athletic Club were awarded a donation.

The Town Council has been supportive of the Barry Athletic Club over the past years. This year, following the donation, the club decided to invite Town councillors to the club premises to see, first hand, the benefits that have been achieved with the aid of the council.

Barry Athletic, situated on Barry Island, comprises five separate sections, with a sixth (running section) about to join in the near future. Each section operates largely independently of the others, but under the umbrella of the Barry Athletic Club, where support is given centrally for the good of all sections and for the club as a whole.

Perhaps the most recognised feature of the club is the large green, which is occupied by the football and cricket sections. This year the club has, with the help of Barry Town Council, secured the purchase of a piece of land on which the cricket and football sections are heavily reliant. This has been a major step forward as the purchase of the land from ABP has given the club long term future security in its present location.

Barry Athletic Cricket Youth Section reformed back in 2014 and since restarting the junior section has seen over 140 new members. 70 of these are from the recent All Stars programme which was introduced to encourage 5 – 8 year olds into cricket in a fun way.

The eight-week programme started back in May and both Couns Nic and Shirley Hodges were in attendance at the first session and were very impressed to hear how the section has been developing and growing.

The under-9 and under-11 teams are thriving with support from a number of coaches (mainly parents). July 15 saw the youth section being Guard of Honour at the Glamorgan v Somerset game at the Swalec Stadium in Cardiff, where 40 junior members were in attendance.

The councillors were informed that next year the cricket section are hoping to progress to two under-9 and under-11 teams and encourage parents to become Level 1 and 2 qualified coaches. It was really interesting talking to councillors and looking at ways of funding to improve the clubhouse (used by both cricket and football sections) which is need of upgrading.

The interior has recently received attention and the roof is being replaced and renewed as funds permit.

Barry Athletic Football Club chairman, Ady Gratton said: "It was great to the show the Barry Town Council representatives around our facilities. We have received almost £2,000 from the council over the past five years, financial assistance has been provided for kit, goalposts, renewal of a leaking changing room roof and a heater for our clubhouse.

"The assistance ensures we can provide the best possible experiences for the local community." The football section now have several teams operating from the athletic club including several junior teams as well as established adult teams.

Dave Weston, club chairman pointed out to the councillors that it wasn't so long ago that the football team were really struggling and it really was a testament to the current members that the section is now thriving way beyond expectations of only a few years ago.

The councillors were then invited into the recently-refurbished club house of the bowls section and were able to see one of the best bowls greens in Wales.

Bowls chairman Richard Bowen was keen to point to the number of businesses, located and operating in Barry and the surrounding area, that are supporting the section.

Barry Athletic Bowls Club, now in its 106th year, has been a renowned force in Welsh bowls for decades having produced a number of international, and commonwealth and world level bowlers.

The club can offer one of the best playing surfaces in Wales and is regularly used by county and national associations to host prestigious bowls events in Wales. The club competes at the highest level of bowls in Wales having won the national club championship on two occasions, and fields three competitive teams every week during the season.

The club is also enjoying a resurgence in membership with over 65 members and has developed an ambitious five year plan to build strength and depth in both playing and administrative capability, in order to ensure a sustainable model for the future.

There is a strong social side to the club and a warm welcome awaits any potential members. Accompanying the successful competitive teams, there are opportunities for those who have never tried bowling to come and try in a friendly environment.

Next stop for the councillors was to see and hear the Vale of Glamorgan Brass Band.

Approximately 10 years ago the band were searching for new premises, and while doing one of their annual concerts in the Barry Athletic Club, the officers pointed to a disused building that could be suitable. The rest, as they say, is history and music-making in the Barry Athletic Club is now a regular occurrence.

The Vale of Glamorgan Brass Band were delighted to invite the Mayor and Mayoress of Barry to watch them practice on Tuesday night (normally Monday). Nic and Shirley were treated to a rousing version of 'Sweet Caroline', written by Neil Diamond.

The Band has benefited from financial support in recent years from the Town Council to improve their facility at the athletic club complex. A new teaching / practice room has been constructed and recently the kitchen area has been completely renewed.

The councillors were pointed to various instruments that the council has helped purchase over the years, including timpani and a gong. The training band has not been neglected and Dave Short, musical director, was keen to point out that the training band is the future of the band. Several of the senior band players had come through the training sector of the band.

The councillors were shown the training band instruments ready use with new classes starting in September. With the cost and availability of instruments and lessons ever increasing, the Vale of Glamorgan Band offers the chance to play a whole array of brass and percussion instruments at a very low cost with all instruments provided.

The Band meet on a Monday night and are always happy to welcome new members, particularly young people who want to learn and develop their musical skills.

The final section to visit was the tennis section. Athletic Club president and keen tennis player, Alan Oliver was keen to show off the facilities with club treasurer, Harry Morgan.

The councillors were appreciative of the four courts and the well maintained shrubbery. They were surprised at how pleasant the lounge and changing rooms were, with the wooden cladding that had been built by the tennis section's own members.

The efforts with pamphlets and coaching courses to attract new members stated that the courts were available for certain groups such as Barry Island School, who are making a regular appearance in Barry. The friendly tennis section are always looking for new members and a warm welcome is open to all.

Before retiring back to the bowls pavilion, club chairman, Dave Weston, was keen to emphasise to councillors the facilities that the Barry Athletic Club as a whole has to offer the people of Barry and the wider community.

The club is a major asset to the area and if anyone is interested in finding out more, Dave Weston can be contacted on 01446 413118 (answerphone available) or 07919 128509.

BRYNHILL GOLF CLUB HOSTS SOCIETY'S CUP

Winner Jeff Price of Radyr Golf Club being presented his trophy by Mike Cook, captain of the society and vice-president of Brynhill Golf Club.

Runner-up Mike Underdown, captain at Brynhill Golf Club, being presented with his plate by Mike Cook, society member and vice-president of Brynhill Golf Club.

BRYNHILL Golf Club played host to the South Wales Coast Golf Captains Society's Stanley Harrison Cup earlier this month.

Since its formation in 1964 the South Wales Coast Golf Captains Society has brought together captains and past captains from the South Wales coastal golf clubs to foster friendships and enjoy golf.

Members from the constituent 17 clubs meet for a series of inter-county Society matches throughout the year are keenly competed.

Mike Underdown, captain at Brynhill, extended a warm welcome to all the present and past Captains of the 17 clubs that make up the society.

Tony Newton, secretary of the SWCGCS, commented that the course was in excellent condition and the scoring was high.

The winner was Jeff price from Radyr Golf Club with 41 points with Mike Underdown, the Brynhill captain, coming a close second with 39 points.

Tony Newton paid special tribute to the Brynhill past captains who are such strong supporters of the society.

An excellent dinner was enjoyed by all and fulsome praise was given to all associated with the organisation of the event from Brynhill.

Mr Newton added: "A great day for the society and Brynhill Golf Club."

Mike Underdown said "I cannot thank our staff enough from the superb presentation of our course to the fantastic meal put on by our caterer. I was very proud of Brynhill".

Cowbridge 10K is bigger and better

LLANTWIT MAJOR 10K committee have joined with Cancer Research UK committee – to help them make the Cowbridge 10K the best yet!

The event takes place on Sunday, October 15. Anne Birt had asked the team to share their knowledge and experience with her working party and the Llantwit group were only too pleased to help.

Their own 10K takes place on Saturday, August 26. All are welcome.

Cowbridge 10K will also feature a 5K run, as usual but for the first time there will be a 1K race for small children.

The aim is to make the event, not only a regular feature in the Cowbridge calendar, but also a real family affair!

Town and Country Collective have offered to sponsor the event.

Summer camp to be held

THERE will be a one-week All Stars summer sports camp and confidence club held at Barry Athletic Cricket Club between August 14 and August 18.

The camp is open to 8-12-year-olds, and activities will include futsal, cricket, handball and ultimate frisbee.

There is a maximum of 20 particpants to book early!

Call Mark Ellis on 07826 020707.

Vale United's presentation evening a success

VALE UNITED enjoyed their annual presentation evening recently, with a well-attended event toasting the achievements of Lloyd Williams and his team.

Vale's coaching team for the upcoming season was announced, with ex-Bristol City and Team Bath playmaker, Mathew Hobbs, agreeing to stay on as head coach, with ex-Welsh League player James Lang finally hanging up his boots – enabling him to act as assistant coach.

A poignant moment of the evening came through club favourite Richard Evans, who announced his decision to step down as Vale United captain, following three very successful and trophy-laden seasons.

Ex-Celtic man Jay Tominey took home the golden boot, closely followed by Dan Hanson and Alex Gregory.

Ryan Jenkins was named clubman, due to his tireless efforts leading the ground renovations required to see Vale United move up the Welsh football ladder.

Player's player was given to Jay Tominey, a deserved accolade following his goal-scoring heroics of the past season.

All that remained was for the player of the year to be announced.

It was no surprise to see centre-half Joe Williams collect the spoils, following an impressive season and man-of-the match-performances in both of the Vale's victorious cup finals.

The club would also like to welcome ex-Penybont players Mark Williams and Steven Gauci, alongside Vale League favourite Anthony Randall and highly-rated centre half Jay Ellis.

With these encouraging signings, Vale will be hoping for their fourth promotion in four years since the club was established.

RACE FIASCO ELICITS AUTHORITY PROBE

THE British Horse Racing Authority have begun a probe, after a fiasco last Thursday, when a three-year-old won a race which was for two-year-olds at Yarmouth, writes BRIAN LEE.

The 1.40 opener was believed to have been won by the 50-1 outsider Mandarin Princess, but in fact was won by stable companion, Millie's Kiss, a three-year-old that was actually down to run in a later race that day.

The British Horse Racing Association said: "The stewards held an inquiry to consider the circumstances surrounding the identification of the 50-1 winner, Mandarin Princess, trained by Charlie McBride, which was presented at the sampling and routine testing. The scan identified the horse to be Millie's Kiss, the trainer's other runner in race four. They have interviewed the trainer, the stable groom, the vet and the equine welfare integrity officer responsible for sampling the unit.

"Having heard their evidence, they referred the matter to head office and ordered Millie's Kiss to be withdrawn from race four. Since we introduced the microchipping system, an incident such as this is, as far as we are aware, unprecendented."

Although no wrongdoing was intended, the trainer of the horses concerned, Charlie McBride, will probably be heavily fined.

In my book Racing Rogues-The Scams,Scandals and Gambles of Horse Racing in Wales (published by St David's Press at £14.99), I tell the story of how a horse belonging to someone in the Vale, and which had run and won at local point-to-points and flapping (unlicenced meetings), ran under a different name and was, in fact, a horse that had run under Jockey Club Rules.

I also tell the story of the ringer scandal that shocked the racing world in 1978 and other tales of switching horses and how Cardiff bookmaker Gomer Charles was jailed for two years for fraud after his syndicate placed £100k worth of bets on a ringer racehorse – that won at Bath races at odds of 20-1.

Charles was later shot dead outside his Park Place, Cardiff home in 1966.

EVAN'S UTTOXETER WINNER

Still Believing, trained by Llancarfan's Evan Williams, was a 11-1 winner of the Burton Albion Handicap Hurdle at Uttoxeter last Sunday.

Ridden by the in-form Mitchell Bastyan, nine-year-old Still Believing won by half-a-length from Braavos ridden by champion jockey Richard Johnson.

Pembrokeshire's Peter Bowen and his jockey son Sean also had plenty to smile about. They came away with a double thanks to Kinari, which won the handicap chase at odds of 7-1, and Wadswick Court who took the Fox Family Chase at odds of 3-1.

The former scored by half-a-length from the Jonjo O'Neill trained Lost Legend and the latter won by a head from Colin Tizzard's Gentleman John.

Barry Athletic bowlers go from strength-to-strength!

BARRY ATHLETIC PG2 side built on their commanding lead at the top of the league with another resilient victory away at Rhiwbina BC.

With the side having to make a last-minute change, due to the absence of regular skip Dave Snelling, it was left to experienced skip Mike Vaughan and his rink to lay the foundation for the victory, supported by captain Paul Webley, who also skipped his rink to a fine away victory.

The narrow defeats suffered by Albert Mintern's rink and Gary Gane's rink were not enough for the Cardiff side and the Athletic romped home to yet another impressive victory by 10 shots; and taking 10 of the 14 points on offer, to consolidate their position at the top of the division, and increasing their chances of promotion back to the top division.

The Vale of Glamorgan County Finals were held on the 4Wood green at Barry and the club were delighted to witness Glyn Thomas and Martin Clarke claim the pairs title – the 84th county title won by the club over its 106-year history.

Up against international opposition in Chris Ashman and Phil Robbins, it was a tight match all the way, with no more than a couple of shots in the game at any stage.

However, with two ends to go, lead Martin Clarke laid a blistering sequence of bowls, to create the opportunity for skip Glyn Thomas to add shots and build a head which (eventually) scored five shots for the Barry duo.

This was enough to create a small advantage for the Barry pair over their Ely Valley pair, and left them with the enviable task of merely matching their opponents bowl for bowl on the final end, to lift the trophy.

Glyn and Martin will now progress to the National Finals at Llandrindod, where they will be looking to secure the club's 20th national title.

In the week, the club's development side slipped to a narrow defeat against Penarth claiming four points of the 14 available.

Rink wins went to Richard Bowen's rink who won by nine shots and Dave Wright's rink who sneaked past the post on the final end, but Peter Rogers and Dave Snelling found the going tough against the hosts and crashed to defeats, ending the winning run for the Barry club.

However, with a number of matches still to play and plenty of points on offer, the challenge for the title is still on.

Barry Athletic also won through to the final of the Alun Martin trophy in the week, sweeping aside the challenge of Sully BC on a heavy running Dinas Powys green.

The experience of Glyn Thomas, Richard Bowen, Chris Wright and Lol Paige proved too much for the Sully rink skipped by Brian Griffiths, and although Carl Best was able to carve out a narrow victory over David Wright, it was not enough to stop the title holders from progressing to the final – to face Penarth Windsor later in the month.

Ladies open at Brynhill Golf Club

ON Friday, July 21, lots of ladies from many clubs decided to play in the rain to support the Brynhill Golf Club ladies open.

However, due to the unseasonable extreme weather conditions, it was decided to reduce the competition to nine holes.

There was a fabulous raffle with many winners.

A golf clothing sale and a jewellery stall for ladies to spend their money.

A representative from this year's captain Olwen Thomas' chosen charity,

The Alzheimer's Association was present to chat to ladies about the charity.

Winners of the day were Pat John, Dee Watkins and Karen Jones from the Vale Golf Club with 40 points.

Runners-up were Shirley Lewis, Helen Loo and Sally Bryant from Southerndown Golf Club with 38 points, and third place went to Gemma Evans, Shirley O'Donovan and Lisa Taylor from Brynhill Golf Club with 37 points.

All winners received gift vouchers.

Nearest the pin winner was Gemma Evans and longest drive winner was Shirley Lewis.

The ladies captain Olwen Thomas, thanked everyone for attending.

Thanked the bar and catering teams and the greens staff.

Vale cricketers flatter to deceive

WEATHER intervened in what looked like turning into an exciting finish for Vale CC's first XI last Saturday, while the second XI lost badly – mainly due to a very poor batting performance.

Travelling to Sully to face the Centurions, the first team bowled first and, despite picking up a wicket from first ball of the day when last week's bowling hero Sean Rowland caught Singh off Darren Upham, were unable to cause the home team too many more problems.

Darren Goodway stood out for Sully, compiling 101 not out with notable support from Gethin Hicks (29) and Russell Thomas who finished on 32 not out.

James Snelson was Vale's stand-out bowler with 3 for 55 in the home team's total of 198 for 4.

Skipper JP Davies was concerned about the lack of penetration from the bowling unit, but also knew that the target was well within the team's compass on what is a very good wicket.

JP Davies (18) and Alex Davidson (31) started well for the visitors, and then Snelson got to work with a well-struck 33, including two sixes; he perished going for a third, caught at long-on having assembled an important partnership with Matthew Thomas.

When the rains came, Thomas was well set on 27 and with the score on 142 for 6 with 10 overs remaining.

Given the strength of Vale's lower-middle order, they will feel deprived of a potential win which would have returned them to third in the table.

Meanwhile at a damp Corntown, entertaining Sully's second XI, home skipper Carl Brooks lost the toss and his side were asked to bat on a wicket that initially lacked pace.

Good opening spells from Nick Jones (1-24) and Dinesh Vekariya (1-15) put Vale behind the clock, but as they had both 'bowled through' Brooks' side would have expected to make good progress against the change bowlers.

Initially, this was the case, with Gareth Kelland (45) and Gethin Merry (28) putting together a partnership of 89.

They both fell in the same over, and the remainder of the batting subsided meekly to be dismissed for 119.

Nobody else achieved double-figures and with two entirely preventable run-outs, this was a really poor performance.

Ewan Thomas (3-11) and Jason Hicks (3-30) will probably admit to being flattered by their figures.

Ironically, Vale proceeded after tea to put together one of the best bowling and ground fielding performances of the season.

Idris Merry (2-16), Greg Andrews, Tom Lazarus, Gareth Kelland and Gethin Merry, all bowled accurately and with the right balance between attack and defence called for by Brooks.

The difference was that Sully's batsmen batted properly and sold their wickets dearly.

Jason Hicks played patiently for 43 before being brilliantly stumped by Gareth Andrews off Idris Merry, and with support from Jones (14) and Oatridge (15) saw the visitors to 120-5 in relatively untroubled fashion.

The home side will rue a dropped catch and a couple that did not quite go to hand, but in reality this was a tame performance. Remarkably, Vale remains third in the table (though Sully have a match in hand which will almost certainly see them overtaken).

This week the seconds host Barry Wanderers and will need to show improvement to avoid a 'flattering to deceive' season.

Spectators are always welcome, and the excellent clubhouse bar will be open all day. The firsts travel to the Wanderers in the reverse fixture.

BAD WEEKEND WITH THE BAT FOR ATHLETIC

ON Saturday, Barry Athletic Cricket Club's first XI travelled to Rogerstone and batted first.

They were bowled out for 112, with Pravin (21), Billy Usswald (18 no), Steve Provis (17) and M.Anwar 13 being the only ones to reache double figures, G.Berry (4-23) and Akbar (3-8) being the best bowlers.

In reply, Rogerstone reached their target with the loss of four wickets with Holaway (45 no), with M. Anwar 3 -33 and L.Bruce 1-17 the best bowlers.

Barry Athletic's second XI entertained Rogerstone second XI on The Island on Saturday and were asked to bat first on a humid and sticky afternoon.

They were bowled out for 73, with Steve Oram (33) and young Wesley Baker showing maturity and composure of someone many years older, scoring 10 not out.

In reply, Rogerstone reached their total off 12.4 overs with the loss of no wickets – Webb scoring 53 not out.

This weekend, Barry Athletic first XI travel to Cardiff Gymkhana, with the second XI entertaining the same opposition on the Island; both games have a 12.30pm start.

Looking back – to 1973: Oh, what fun we had!

GEM columnist BRIAN LEE, who has been reporting on the Welsh hunt-racing scene for more than 50 years, takes another peep into one of his prolific press cuttings books.

UNDER the heading – 'Llewellyn triumphs' – one of my yellowing press cuttings reads as follows:

'Cowbridge's John Llewellyn and Bassaleg's Mike Williams, the two leading riders in Wales, fought out the finish to a high- class men's open race at the Curre Hunt Point-To-Point Steeplechases on Saturday.

'Victory went to Llewellyn, who was riding Nearly There 11 for Mrs Catherine Hiorns.

Mike Williams, riding Fitz for Dinas Powys's Mrs Rose Harry, put in a strong challenge between the last two fences and after jumping the last fence just behind the winner was three lengths down at the winning post.

It was quick consolation for Llewellyn, who looked like trotting home on North Gate in the members' race, only to fall at the last fence when well clear.

Tim Rooney, a 16-year-old blacksmith from Marshfield, made every post a winning one when coming home eight lengths clear in the maiden race on Roughan Again.'

Sadly, Mrs Harry and Mike Williams are no longer with us and Rooney, who went on to much greater things including winning the Horse & Hound Cup at Stratford on 50-1 outsider Devil's Walk in 1977, was chalking-up his first winner.

For the record, the members' race that day went to a horse called Tyro's Try who was partnered by Castleton's Bill Jones who I believe was the first Welshman to ride 100 winners between-the-flags. Bill was sadly killed in a motoring accident in 1981; he had ridden his first winner in 1949 and his last in 1973.

He had a very good point-to-pointer called Spurn Head which, I am sure one of my regular readers, Mr Handel Jones, will remember.

The adjacent hunts' race was won by John Beavis on the favourite April Delight and the ladies' open that day was won by Wales' most famous and most prolific point-to-pointer Mandryka, owned by Rhondda's Tom Morgan and ridden by his daughter Shan Morgan who was to marry the Vale's Ross Farr.

That day, Mandryka beat Sampson Brass, ridden by Diana Bishop, with Orange Pip ridden by Cowbridge's Eirlys Thomas in third place. Eirlys a year or two later was to win the Welsh ladies' championship without riding a winner!

How come? Well, the championship is run on a points basis and she rode so many seconds and thirds that she accumulated more points than the other riders!

There were only five races a meeting back then but oh, what fun it was!

Debra's Worcester winner

DEBRA HAMER, who hails from the Vale, won the two-and-a-half miles handicap hurdle (Division 1) at Worcester last week with her eight-year-old ShanksForAMillion only course and distance winner in the 11 runner field.

Partnered by the talented 7lb claimer Richard Patrick, ShanksAMillion, who was well backed at 11-4, won by five lengths from Rif Raftou.

Chepstow's Robert Stephens saddled the winner and the runner-up of the Amateurs ' Handicap Hurdle.

Craig Dowson, riding the seven-year-old Balkinstown came home one-and-a-half lengths ahead of stablemate hree Colours Red, a five-year-old and a course and distance winner, who was ridden by Morgan Winstone who also claims 7lb.

Both horses are owned by Newport-born Colleen Ford-Ellis who is well known in hunt-racing circles and who once worked as a secretary to National Hunt trainer J.A.C. Edwards.

Cruel July takes a heavy toll on Cowbridge firsts

IF April is meant to be the cruellest month Cowbridge Cricket Club's first XI might be excused for raising an eyebrow.

At the start of July the team were looking like potential challengers for promotion to the Premier League.

One defeat and second place in the South Wales Cricket Association led their supporters to think maybe this would be the year.

April cruel? July has been horrid. Matches rained off when others played, a game lost when their innings was curtailed by rain, extraordinary happenings off the field disrupting a run chase… and a top player banned for three weeks.

It's all been more traumatic than anyone could have imagined.

The fixture last Saturday was against Llanelli who had been beaten at Cowbridge earlier in the year.

In the meanwhile the west Wales outfit have grown more effective and emerged at the table top.

On Saturday at Stradey Park the home side totalled 217-6, a satisfactory total and one that would be around what would be regarded as par.

Cowbridge started off briskly but with a rather makeshift look to the batting it was Tom Merilaht with 50 not out in 50 overs that kept the Cowbridge innings together.

In company with Nick Wood, the rock of the Cowbridge batting held firm and a draw was achieved.

Cowbridge never really challenged and finished at 95-5 slipping to mid-table.

CLUB'S DISAPPOINTMENT AT SUSPENSION VERDICT

The Cowbridge Cricket Club would like to comment on the issue which caused the banning of one of their players for three weeks with a further nine suspended.

However, when the facts of the issue and the punishment handed down have been put before a number of legal figures, there has been unanimity that had a court of law been involved then there would not have been a case to answer.

The SWCA may behave as they wish but it is frustrating that they have chosen to do so in a way that appears to be removed from natural justice.

Cowbridge Bowls Club round-up

THE ladies and the men's teams both had fixtures with Llantwit last week in three different competitions.

All matches were keenly contested with Llantwit happier overall with the results.

The first match of the week though was a ladies Cowbridge Shield match away to Pencoed with Cowbridge winning on one of the three rinks.

Rink scores: Janet Morton, Diaine Radley, Shirley Wilkinson and Dorothy Pritchard 26-11; Caryl Davies, Maggie Penn, Lynda Wilson and Joy Woolford 16-19; Corrie Bufton, Carol Davies, Phyllis Price and Sylvia Hole 7-27. Match score Cowbridge 49, Pencoed 57.

Cowbridge mens team welcomed Llantwit for the home Munro Cup game last Wednesday.

What a close game it was, with Cowbridge losing narrowly on three of four rinks and the game overall by just two shots.

Rink scores: Gerry Lloyd, John Jones, Guy Morton and Norman Wilkinson 19-14; Terry Dunsworth, Tony Lewis, Brian Kent and Colin Wilson 15-18; Mansel Davey, Peter Rice, Bryan Hole and Peter Launder 15-18; Steve Dodsworth, Owen Hopkin, Rob Lewis and Clive Pritchard 12-13. Match score Cowbridge 61, Llantwit 63.

The next day the ladies played Llantwit at home in a Thursday afternoon league game. Cowbridge won on two of the three rinks.

Rink scores: Diane Purnell, Tina Payne, Joy Woolford and Shirley Wilkinson 20-9; Lin Wallace, Diane Lloyd, Phyllis Price and Sue Flower 25-14; Lynda Wilson, Corrie Bufton, Sylvia Hole and Joan Bradley 12-17. Match score Cowbridge 57, Llantwit Major 40.

Later that day the men travelled the short distance to Llantwit to play in the Evening Triples league, losing to Llantwit on three of the four rinks and by 22 shots overall.

This was despite a fine rink performance by Tom Purnell, Ken Payne and Roger Barwick with a 19-7 win. Match score Cowbridge 46, Llantwit 68.

The men were at home for the Saturday League game. The visitors were the Millwood club from Barry.

Cowbridge were unlucky to lose narrowly on three of the four rinks but secured a win overall and eight points by Roger Barwick's rink impressive win.

Rink scores: Gerry Lloyd, John Wathes, Brian Williams and Norman Wilkinson 17-20; Terry Dunsworth, John Jones, Brian Kent and Roger Barwick 25-9; Mansel Davey, Ken Payne, Guy Morton and Clive Pritchard 18-20; Terry Foley, Bryan Hole, Colin Wilson and Bob Penn 17-19. Match score Cowbridge 77, Millwood 68.

Finally the fixture list shows two games at Llantrisant next – the ladies played Llantrisant Ladies in a 2 rink Evening League game on Monday, then on Saturday the men play Llantrisant A team in a league game.

Victory keeps seconds' promotion hopes alive!

COWBRIDGE seconds entertained second-placed Drefach in a game they simply had to win to keep any hopes of promotion alive.

Stand-in captain Dave Gascoyne kept up his 100 per cent record by again losing the toss!

The Drefach captain eagerly asked Cowbridge to bat first on an understandably damp and green wicket, ideal for seam bowling.

The highly-rated Cowbridge opening pair of Webb and Gascoyne yet again got Cowbridge off to a solid start, batting sensibly early on against the new ball in difficult batting conditions, gradually increasing the run rate until Webb was dismissed for 39 with the total on 128.

With the help of Naveed Younas, Mike Hordley and Joe Russell, Gascoyne increased the run rate until he was eventually dismissed for a superb 95, caught on the boundary unselfishly attempting to achieve maximum batting points for his team.

Gascoyne has already amassed 700 runs this season, almost double any other batsman in the division.

Playing shots all around the wicket he was particularly severe on any short-pitched bowling.

Given the wet conditions, Cowbridge finished on an impressive 187-3 after their allotted 40 overs.

In reply, Drefach got off to a slow but solid start with some accurate bowling by Umar Rafique and Joe Russell.

When both bowlers took a wicket, Drefach's captain and best batsman, who was averaging over 200, arrived at the crease.

Sian Russell was introduced into the attack and soon dismissed the dangerous Drefach captain and with Ian Evans taking a further two wickets for five runs off four overs Drefach slumped to 71-5.

Unfortunately, the heavy rain that had been forecast arrived to end the game.

Cowbridge however took the lion's share of the points due to a far superior run rate.

This meant that Cowbridge move up to fourth position in the league only four points behind second-placed Drefach.

Having narrowly missing out on promotion last season Cowbridge are back in the mix with only four games remaining.

An away trip to local rivals Porthcawl waits next week, with Cowbridge hoping for a third consecutive win.

Ladies' captain's day celebrated by crowd at St Athan Golf Club

ON Saturday, July 22, it was ladies' captains day at St Athan Golf Club.

The ladies' captain Maureen Anderson welcomed all the lady members with a lovely gift.

The ladies played an 18-hole Stapleford competition with prizes for nearest the pin, nearest the line drive and a chipping competition, which was organised by Hywel Phillips-Morgan.

The day was a great success, with the weather kind to us after all the heavy rain (we only had one small shower).

The course was in excellent condition, scores were high and close.

The overall winner of silver competition was Erin Anderson with Liz Thomas a close runner-up, bronze competition winner Rose Dawson and runner- up Carolyn McKenzie.

Winner of nearest pin was Mearl Owen, nearest the line drive was Lesley Hurry with the chipping competition shared between Janis Griffiths and Janet Davies.

The evening celebrations were on a French theme, with French cuisine buffet as usual excellently provided by Leanne.

We were also honoured with a special guest to present the prizes, the legendary Wales and Lions fullback JPR Williams.

Maureen thanked JPR for presenting the winners with their prizes and thanked all the ladies for their support.

JPR also made a speech and asked the ladies if they had any questions for him.

He was overwhelmed by the knowledge us ladies had about rugby and our personal views and questions on the game, all answered with great humour.

The evening was enjoyed by all. A big thank you to JPR for making it a enjoyable evening.

St Athan Golf Club members welcome new players of all ages and abilities.
